U.S. recession spills north

Canadian auto industry lays off 3,000 workers

Times News Services

The deepening recession and spreading energy fears in the United States have started spilling over into Canada, with the first indicator being massive layoffs in the auto industry.

More than 3,000 Canadian workers have been laid off indefinitely because U.S. motorists are buying more small, fuel-efficient foreign cars.

And in Washington, latest government forcasts are that the economy has entered a recession that will last the rest of this year, with inflation at or near a double-digit pace in 1979 and 1980 and the jobless rate rising to 7.3 per cent.

"It will be a difficult time for us until people in the U.S. are convinced energy will be available," Bob White, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers Union, said in Toronto.

One of the largest Canadian shutdowns affects 2,200 employees for about four weeks at the Toronto van plant of General Motors of Canada Ltd. Company officials said the shutdown, which begins Aug.7, has resulted because of a large inventory.

Thousands more Canadians will be affected by temporary shutdowns and reduced production rates.

Between 60 and 70 per cent of Canadian-made cars are shipped to the U.S.

During June, sales of new cars in the U.S. dropped 20 per cent from the same period last year with sales declining to 904,000 cars, compared with 1,137,199 the previous year.

The U.S. commerce department reported Wednesday that business inventories rose again in May to levels one agency spokesman called worrisome, particularly as consumers cut purchases.

The inventory buildup was announced as the Congressional Budget Office said the recession will be deeper than it originally believed. It predicted double-digit inflation through 1979 and as many as two million more Americans out of work by the end of next year.

Despite the gloomy news, Alice Rivlin, the agency director, warned against hasty action to reverse the slowdown because that might fuel inflation.

And Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal told the congressional joint economic committee the U.S. dollar was "in reasonably good shape" because of improvements in the trade and payments accounts.

The updated forecast, decidedly gloomier than the mild recession the agency predicted last January, calls for three consecutive quarters of "significant" decline in output this year, followed by "a weak recovery in 1980."

The CBO forecast, which is generally in line iwth the predictions of non-government economists, is expected to be somewhat more pessimistic than the Carter administration's latest predictions, scheduled to be unveiled today.

Although the White House has not disclosed what its forecast will contain, the administration is expected to predict a milder downturn than the budget office's forecast, with inflation in the 9 per cent range and joblessness rising moderately.

Pulp union defies IWA

Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada pickets today defied threats by the International Woodworkers of America and maintained a two-day-old picket line at a Vancouver mill.

In the face of the challenge, the IWA seemed uncertain of its next move and was discussing strategy this morning.

IWA leaders Wednesday told the PPWC to remove pickets at MacMillan Bloedel's Vancouver Plywood and Canadian White pine operations or face possible violence.

The IWA leaders said that if the PPWC didn't pull out, the IWA might use force to clear out the pickets.

PPWC picket chairman John Murray said today, however, his union is on a legal strike and will not budge.

Tension between the two unions — long rivals in the forest industry — has been high recently, ever since PPWC roving picket squads began disrupting operations throughout the province.

Not only has the PPWC shut down operations where it represents the workers, it has also been closing mills where they are not represented.

There are over 1,000 IWA woodworkers at the Vancouver plant. Some of them crossed the picket line today but only to pick up paycheques.

"If they do not remove their picket lines, we will," IWA regional president Jack Munro warned Wednesday.

"We're not going to stand for it," he said.

IWA officials were unavailable for comment this morning.

The Harmac operation has been shut by pickets for several days, and roving squads from there have so far closed down mills employing more than 5,000 workers in Crofton, Prince Rupert, Powell River and Prince George.

The PPWC, which has 5,500 members, is dissatisfied with the contract, but the IWA, which has 30,000 members in the coast region, and the 7,500-strong Canadian Paperworkers' Union, have not completed voting. Results are expected in two weeks.

The tentative agreement provides for a 90-cents-an-hour increase in the first year and a 9.5 per cent in the second year. Base rate for all three unions now is $8.16 an hour.

1 in 3 chickens diseased

EDMONTON (CP) — One out of every three chickens and turkeys sold in Canada is contaminated with potentially deadly Salmonella bacteria, but banning the diseased meat could badly disrupt the poultry industry, a federal health official said Wednesday.

Dr. A. B. Morrison, federal assistant deputy minister of health and welfare in the health protection branch, said officials are prepared to make sale of poultry containing Salmonella illegal, but he admits any such act would likely hurt the industry.

Other officials say poultry prices would rise, as they did in Sweden, Finland aand Denmark, where Salmonella epidemics sparked control measures.

Currently, Canada is sticking with voluntary programs with the goal for 1982 of a reduction to five per cent in the total number of diseased birds.

Salmonella bacteria produces a type of food poisoning, with symptoms usually limited to abdominal pain, diarrhea, fever, nausea, vomiting and dehydration.

But it can be fatal for infants, the elderly and the debilitated.

Firm to pay for BCR

The provincial government has reached agreement with a major coal company to extend the government-owned B.C. railway into the rich Sukunka coal fields of northeastern B.C.

Economic Development Minister Don Phillips said today a tentative agreement has been reached with British Petroleum Canada Ltd. for financing of the $50 million, 61-kilometre extension of the line from Chetwynd south to the Sukunka coal field which has reserves estimated at 2.8 billion tonnes.

Phillips said the government will finance the extension but the company will be responsible for the total cost if the project doesn't go ahead.

Repayment for the extension will be on a user-pay basis, he said.

"Somebody has to come up front and make a decision. When you look at the future possibility of 1,200 new jobs and millions of dollars in export revenue, its a very small amount."

The agreement also calls for the government to pay for the support facilities based on $30,000 a job, Phillips said in an interview.

"That still has to be ratified by the provincial and federal cabinets."

He estimated the cost at about $50 million for the railway and $25 million for the support facilities.

BP estimates that the first phase of its proposed mine will cost about $100 million, produce one million tonnes of clean metallurgical coal a year and create between 400 and 500 jobs by 1983. The second phase would see employment rise to 1,200 by 1987.

Big chunk of Skylab turns up in Australia

Times News Services

Skylab swished across the Australian sky and burst into thousands of sparking pieces as farmers and housewives watched the final spectacular moments of it's 874 million-mile space odyssey.

A large cylindrical object believed to be part of Skylab's docking mechanism was found in desert country about 1,000 kilometres east of Perth today, a U.S. consul spokesman said.

The object, measuring two metres long and one metre in diameter, was found at the township of Rawlinna, which has a population of about 50 people.

A twisted piece of metal found on the 15th tee of an Albany golf course Thursday led a groundskeeper to believe for a few hours that Skylab's misfortune had made him a rich man.

But it turned out to be a disappointing hoax to John Rowe, 27. The 25-inch lump of metal came from a nearby workshop and had been planted on the golf course there as a joke.

A Perth television station provided a plane to fly Rowe to Perth, 250 miles away, and a radio station there offered to fly him on to San Francisco, where he hoped to collect $10,000 offered by the San Francisco Examiner to the first person to bring a piece of Skylab to its office.

John Sealer, a farmer from Boondoonia, said at first he couldn't see the debris as it streaked across the sky Wednesday. But his farm animals heard a hissing sound and ran wildly around their pens.

"The dogs were barking and going mad and the horses, the horses were galloping around in a panic for quite some time afterward. And for quite a while there was a strange smell in the air — like freshly burnt earth," Sealer said.

Ira Goldfinch, a farmer on the southwest coast, looked up to the sky and saw a "glowing ball" that appeared to be heading straight at him.

"I was getting very worried and I saw it break up just as it started coming over the coast. It shattered into a thousand bright pieces," Goldfinch said.

"It was a bright red light and then it just broke into a whole lot of golden sort of fragments. A huge big shower and it blazed across the horizon," he said.

Hotel blaze claims 75

SARAGOSSA, Spain (UPI) — Europe's worst fire in more than a decade engulfed a 10-storey luxury hotel today, killing at least 75 persons and injuring about 100 more, including the widow and daughter of Generalissmo Francisco Franco, authorities said.

Some of the victims plunged to their deaths from upper floors of Saragossa's Hotel Corona de Aragon and others cried and screamed for help from balconies as flames and billowing smoke spread quickly through the modern brick-and-wood building's 232 rooms.

An American witnesss said a young girl dangling outside a window from her mother's arms fell to the ground as a sheet of flames engulfed their room. Other panicky guests huddled on the roof or hung from balconies as U.S. Air Force helicopters from the joint Spanish-American airbase at Saragossa flew rescue sorties.

The city government said at least 75 people died in the fire. About 100 were injured.

Six killed in pile-up

TOKYO (UPI) — A chain reaction of motor vehicle accidents in a highway tunnel Wednesday night destroyed about 160 cars and left at least six persons dead, police said today.

Police said the fire that followed the wreck in one of the worst highway accidents in Japan was out of control almost 24 hours after it erupted.

More than $63 million worth of construction — enough to generate jobs for 1,000 persons for nearly a year — is being lost because of bureaucratic red tape and pressure from small but highly vocal groups, says Victoria's economic development commissioner.

Barry Mayhew made the comment in an interview Wednesday after releasing the results of an analysis of the status of seven major development proposals put forward in the Greater Victoria area in the past year.

Mayhew said the projects are all in a state of limbo, stalled by bureaucratic red tape and the opposition of environmental and ratepayer groups.

He said the proposals represent construction expenditures of $63 million, which at a conservative estimate, would generate more than $25 million in wages.

Based on the average construction worker wage of $14 an hour, that means about 1.8 million man-hours of work are being lost — enough to give 1,000 workers jobs for the next 11 months, he said.

Mayhew said the problem has reached the critical point and unless there is a relaxation of the paperwork requirements and a greater acceptance of development, the high rate of unemployment that has plagued the Greater Victoria area in recent years can only get worse.

The seven development proposals included in his analysis are:

—Daon Development's proposal to build a 23-unit housing complex in James Bay. Mayhew said the development is tied up in litigation with the James Bay Residents' League seeking an injunction to prevent construction. The loss — $1.8 million.

—Broadmead Farms' plan for a housing development at Minnie Mountain. Mayhew said the proposal has been shelved by Saanich because of ratepayers opposition and difficulties that arose concerning the validity of one of the aldermen's vote in favor of the project. The loss — $21 million.

—Broadmead Farms' proposal for a shopping centre at Royal Oak. Mayhew noted Saanich council has deferred making any decision on the scheme until the fall and that because of ratepayer pressure, there is doubt the project will be approved then. The loss — $13 million.

—Victoria's tank farm relocation project. Mayhew said a suggestion the farm should be located at Plumper Bay in View Royal — which he feels is an ideal site — has environmentalists up in arms and as a consequence municipal officials are unduly cautious about reaching a decision. The loss — $12 million.

—The new sewage dump site in View Royal. Because of controversy among local residents and the caution of Capital Region Board members no action has been taken, he said. The loss — $5.2 million.

—Hans Hartwig's proposed office-rental complex

N-defences blasted

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (Reuter) — A Canadian general claimed Thursday that North American air defences are so weak a squadron of Soviet nuclear bombers could fly undetected right up the middle of the continent.

Maj.-Gen. Ross Barber, of Vancouver Island, said in an interview that he has decided to return home early from a key planning post at the North American Air Defence Command headquarters because he sees little hope for an improvement in the situation.

Barber is a deputy chief of staff for plans and programs at NORAD and reports directly to NORAD's commander, U.S. Gen. James Hill. He described himself as "entirely out of step with Washington and Ottawa."

"Our defences are so poor that the Soviets could put 10 bombers through Canada in the middle of the night and we would never know they were there," the 53-year-old Barber said.

The controversy arose even as NORAD officials savored what they regarded as a stellar performance in tracking death plunge of the U.S. Skylab space station, which came down Wednesday over the Indian Ocean and part of Western Australia, for space authorities in Washington.

A NORAD spokesman, U.S. Col. Robert O'Brien, said when appraised of the Barber's comments: "That's his opinion and his views."

O'Brien said he will not argue publicly with the military scenario envisaged by Barber. But he noted that the United States made a policy decision in the early 1960s that it would be futile to spend a lot of money keeping up bomber defences when there is no way of stopping Soviet missiles.

Barber said only modest expenditures would be needed to improve the distant early warning and Pine Tree radar systems across Canada.

The DEW line watches for Soviet bombers coming over the polar ice cap while the Pine Tree network helps direct U.S. and Canadian fighter interceptors to meet them.

"What I'm saying is, the ballistic missile threat is important but we have been ignoring a growing Soviet bomber capability which is getting worse," Barber said.

Carter energy speech Sunday

Washington Star

CAMP DAVID, Md. — President Carter will make a national television address at 10 p.m. Sunday to explain to the American people the decisions he has reached for facing the energy and economic crises, administration sources said Thursday.

The Sunday night speech, which officials said would explain much of what has been happening since Carter began his domestic summit discussions in the isolated mountain retreat on July 3, will be followed Monday morning by another speech.

The second address, to be made in Kansas City to the National Association of County Organizations, is described as an extension of what Carter will say on television Sunday.

Hydro's critics furious at lack of public input

SECHELT (CP) — Community groups in the Sunshine Coast area northwest of Vancouver say they are upset over a government decision to reject public hearings into a planned British Columbia Hydro power line through their district.

The provincially-owned power corporation has announced it will run twin 500,000 kilovolt transmission lines across Sakinaw Lake. Projected costs of the project have jumped to $640 million from $315 million because two foreign companies supplying and installing cables have doubled their prices.

Some opponents of the plan say that the escalation in costs is responsible for a government decision not to hold public hearings into the project.

Energy Minister James Hewitt said last week there would be no time for public input while Environment Minister Rafe Mair has told the Sunshine Coast Regional District that he has concluded a public inquiry is not needed.

Three days after Mair's letter was sent, B.C. Hydro vice-president Charles Nash said the corporation had decided to take the line across the lake instead of around its southern shore.

"Hydro's shifted into high gear," said Ivo Cargnelli, Sakinaw Lake Ratepayers' Association spokesman. "First we hear from Mair there will be no public hearings then Nash tells us: 'Get the hell out of the way, we want to take the very worst route and get our engineers in there.'

"If we have to drive an ax in (B.C. Hydro chairman) Bob Bonner's desk or bomb that line off the hill, we're going to make sure we get our public input."

747 cracks found

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pan American World Airways has discovered cracks in an engine mount of a Boeing 747 jet, but the Federal Aviation Administration says it does not plan to ground the 700 747s owned by airlines around the world.

FAA spokesman Robert Fulton said Wednesday the engine-mount problem on the Boeing jumbo jet bore "no relationship to the problem in the DC-10." Engine mount cracks were blamed for the May crash of a DC-10 in Chicago, resulting in the plane's grounding.

"They are entirely different types of pylons and pylon mountings," Fulton said, adding that the plane on which the cracks were found would be put back into service today.

A Pan Am spokesman said the cracks were discovered Wednesday in two braces on two engine pylons of a 747 being inspected at Kennedy Airport. Pylons connect the engine to the wing.

The damaged braces were taken off and sent to Boeing for further tests. The airline spokesman said 33 other planes inspected by Pan Am were found to be safe.

Some 700 of the 350-passenger 747 jumbo jets are in service around the world. Pan Am sources said cracks had been found earlier in engine mounts on 747s belonging to other airlines.

The Pan Am spokesman said airline officials conferred Wednesday with FAA officials on a plan that would allow the planes to continue flying while they undergo a more rigorous inspection than ordered by the agency.

He noted that the 747 has a "backup system."

Factory ships face new whaling curbs

LONDON (AP) — The International Whaling Commission approved a partial ban on whaling Wednesday in an attempt to protect the sperm whale from the explosive harpoons and factory ships used by the Soviet Union and Japan.

The meeting, in which the U.S. and others had sought a total ban on whaling, voted 18-2 with three abstentions for the compromise ban. It prohibits factory-ship whaling except for the hunting of the minke whale, a smaller species.

The Soviet Union and Japan are the only countries using factory ships for whaling, and they cast the two negative votes.

The IWC also decided to investigate the likely effects of a worldwide ban on whaling.

The sperm whale is the largest toothed whale, the males growing to more than 20 metres. Sperm oil and other products are used for cosmetics, pet food and lubricants.

Richard Frank, U.S. whaling commissioner, called Wednesday's actions "the greatest accumulation of conservation measures in any meeting of the commission."

The whaling commissioners of the Soviet Union and Japan said non-whaling countries are discriminating against them.

The successful proposal was a compromise manoeuvred by Panama, Denmark and Chile, after they realized that a U.S. call for a moratorium on all whaling would not have the required 75-per-cent majority vote.

The 18 countries in favor were: Argentina, Australia, Britain, Canada, Chile, Denmark, France, Holland, Iceland, Mexico, New Zealand, Norway, Panama, Peru, Seychelles, South Africa, Sweden and the United States.

Brazil, South Korea and Spain abstained.

The IWC is composed of 23 whaling and non-whaling countries and sets kill quotas that currently account for 20,000 whales a year. Up to 6,000 more whales are killed by pirate whalers and their meat sold to Japan, conservationists say.

A proposal to ban coastal whaling, which includes subsistence hunting by Eskimos and other aboriginals, lost 11-5, with seven countries abstaining.

New nuggets not of news for Ma Murray

Former newspaper editor Margaret (Ma) Murray, 92, can resume her new gold mining career now that she has been discharged from Vancouver General Hospital after treatment for a hip injury. The former editor of the Bridge River-Lillooet News has become a partner in a venture to mine gold out of the Fraser River near her hometown of Lillooet. She has invested nearly $10,000 in a placer mining system developed by long-time friend Don Dillon, a welder and machinist. The two have applied for a patent for the system, which uses an automatic backhoe to dredge river sand into a sluice and shaker.

California Gov. Jerry Brown says that a Doonesbury comic strip linking him with Sidney Korshak — a campaign contributor with reputed underworld ties — is "false and libelous." But beyond that — taking a leaf from the book of Henry Ford who allegedly said, "I don't care what they say about me, as long as they keep talking" — he sort of enjoys it. Brown says as a public official he can't sue Doonesbury creator Garry Trudeau anyway, and it's doubtful he would if he could. Says he, in Sacramento, "I'm somewhat flattered by it. I don't find the governor of Nevada or the governor of New York the subject of all this attention."

Glitter-rocker Elton John startled fans in 1976 by announcing he would do no more concerts. At the time, John was a colossus of the pop music world. But he had recorded three albums in four months, spent six years on the road, and his latest recordings were getting a poor reception. But following his successful tour of Russia, Reggie Dwight — his real name — says the adrenalin is flowing again and he'll launch a 40-concert tour of the United States in Phoenix, Ariz. Sept. 19.

For the past year, the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers has been trying to track down Big Joe Lee Williams. On Wednesday it found him in Nashville, Tenn., and handed him $3,000 in royalties accrued years ago when he was one of the foremost blues writers and singers of the era. Williams, who says he's "at least 75," turned out such hits in his heyday as Baby, Please Don't Go, Highway Stomp, and Wild Cow Moan. Said he as he picked up his long overdue cheque — discovered in an ASCAP audit a year ago — "You just made my day."

Singer Tony Bennett's wife has filed for divorce in Los Angeles, seeking to end their marriage of seven years. In the Superior Court petition filed Wednesday, Sandra Elaine Bennett sought custody of the couple's two daughters, nine-year-old Joanna and five-year-old Antonia, and half of their property, including their Beverly Hills home and stock in Tony Bennett Enterprises. No reason for the divorce was listed in the suit.

And finally, Dwayne Mann, of Charleston W. Va., is a man who believes in paying his debts to the penny — even if it takes 222,500 pennies to do it. Mann, 27, lugged 45 bags of pennies, each weighing 38 pounds, to a lawyer's office Wednesday and emptied them all on the floor in front of William Harmison. Mann's problems began earlier this year when he said a garage performed unauthorized repairs on his Mercedes Benz and charged him $2,225. Mann said he was advised that without a contract he would face almost certain defeat if he took the garage to court. He decided that by paying in pennies he would at least make his point. But Mann still has one grievance — he won't get a receipt until Harmison counts the coins.

Schlesinger almost at the quitting point

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Beleaguered U.S. Energy Secretary James Schlesinger will resign in less than six months to avoid becoming a political liability to President Jimmy Carter in the 1980 election campaign, an administration official said Wednesday.

The official, who asked not to be named but is familiar with Schlesinger's thinking, said the Cabinet officer may leave "well before the end of the year" if he can do so with dignity.

"He knows he'll be a campaign liability," the official said. "I don't think Schlesinger is going to resign for a while but it's just a matter of when he goes. By the end of the year, before the campaign starts, I think he'll be gone."

Meanwhile, a House of Representatives subcommittee voted Wednesday to give Carter limited authority to impose gasoline rationing during periods of critical shortages.

Congressional leaders who met Carter at Camp David this week have said there is much stronger sentiment in favor of a standby rationing plan now than in May, when there were no long lines at the pumps.

The panel also approved by voice vote a limitation proposed by Rep. Phil Gramm, D-Texas, prohibiting rationing unless there was a 20 per cent shortfall in gasoline supplies for 30 days.

Gramm said the limitation was intended to assure that rationing would be imposed only when there were "catastrophic shortages" and not merely "at the whim of a president."

The pending bill also would require a minimum purchase of $5 of gasoline during shortages.

The energy department also issued an emergency rule Wednesday authorizing U.S. governors to shift gasoline supplies from service stations which shut down to those which remain open.

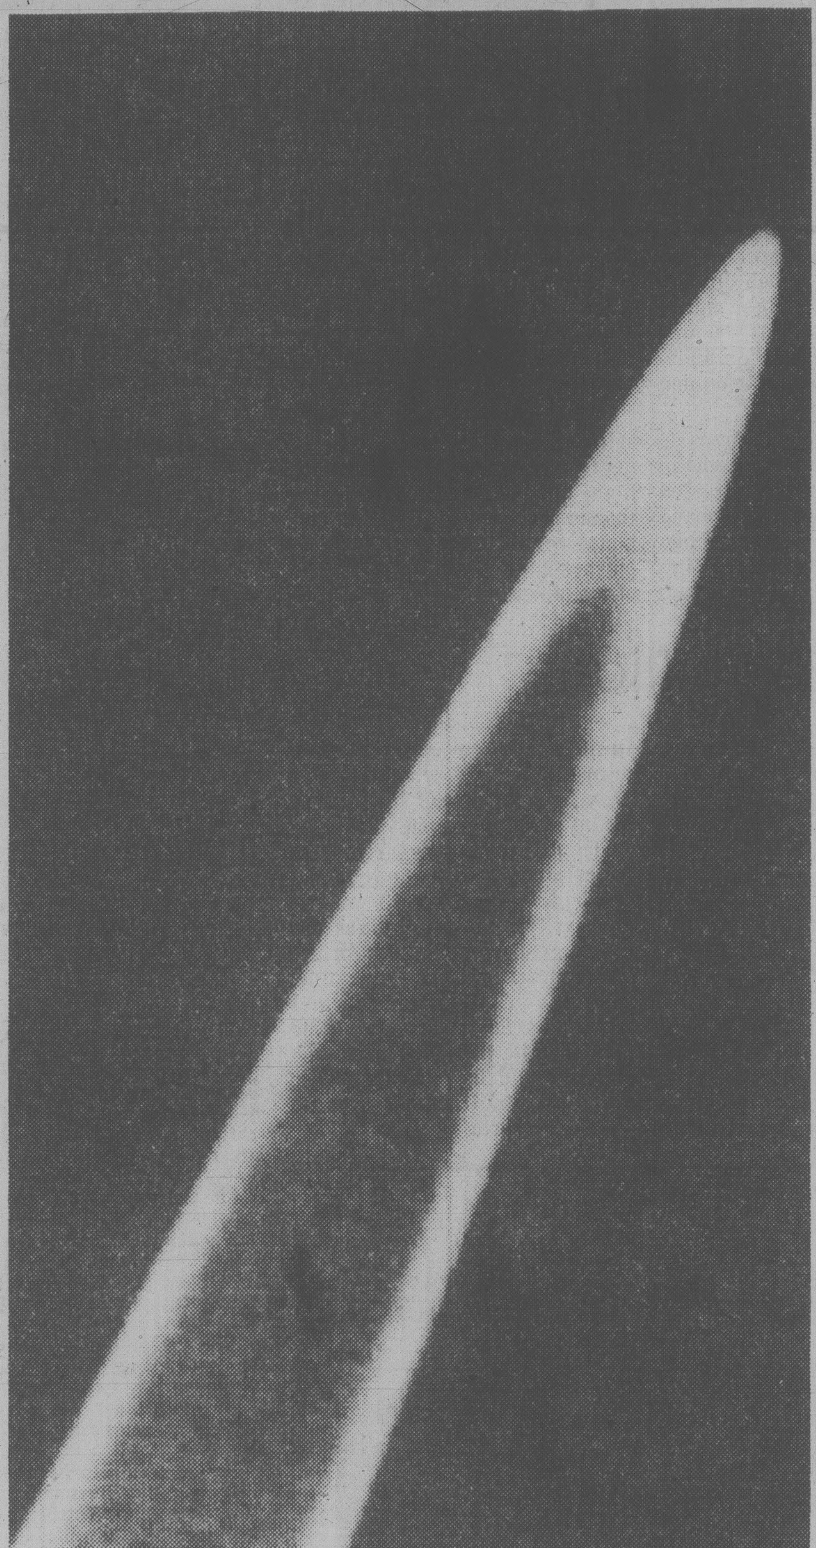
The rule was adopted on the eve of a threatened strike by some Delaware and Pennsylvania independent gasoline dealers who said they would refuse to sell the fuel starting today as a protest against federal allocation and pricing policies.

A governor can also require gasoline stations receiving these transferred supplies to stay open longer, and gasoline suppliers would be prohibited from cutting deliveries to states which have invoked the emergency rule.

The Economic Regulatory Administration has been holding hearings on proposals to change the allocation and pricing rules and was expected to announce its decisions early next week.

In a hopeful note, Exxon, the largest U.S. oil company, said Wednesday it increased its July gasoline allocations to 83 per cent of year ago levels, up from the previously-announced 81 per cent.

Exxon attributed the increase to a somewhat improved inventory position caused by less than expected June deliveries and better than anticipated yields from refinery operations. The company said, however, that production remains constrained by the continued tightness of U.S. crude oil supplies.



RING OF JUPITER captured by Voyager 2 satellite shows an unexpected brightness. According to scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Los Angeles, the brightness may be due to forward scattering of sunlight by small ring particles. Within the inner edge of the brighter ring is a fainter ring which may extend all the way down to the planet's cloud tops.

Secret deal on Mideast?

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (AP) — An Israeli spokesman hinted at secret understandings between Prime Minister Menachem Begin and President Anwar Sadat at their latest meeting. Sadat said "sufficient" progress was made.

Israeli spokesman Dan Patir said Begin was going home today after two days of talks "feeling he accomplished a mission with important and good results."

"I can underline that on the Israeli side we regard the talks and their results, although not made public, as very important."

He told reporters the two leaders omitted a number of topics they discussed when they summarized the results at a joint news conference Wednesday.

Patir defended the lack of announced accomplishments, saying: "These talks were not negotiations and we did not expect any resolutions or decisions."

Sadat and Begin said they will meet again in Haifa, Israel, next month. Patir said the talks will continue on a regular basis but would not speculate how often they will occur.

Egyptian officials offered no elaboration on Sadat's statement to the news conference that the progress of the talks was "sufficient." The Egyptian leader said details should not be discussed at this point.

Despite two days of intensive discussions, the leaders did not announce any resolution of such basic issues as new Israeli settlements in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip territories or their different ideas of autonomy for the 1.2 million Palestinians in the two areas.

Begin said they "agreed to differ" on the settlement issue.

Sadat said that he raised the issue along with the conflict in Lebanon where Israel has carried out reprisals against Palestinian guerrillas.

Observers said he sought to get Israeli pledges of restraint on both issues to try to attract Arab moderates to join the peace process.

Somoza drafts women

MANAGUA (AP) — President Anastasio Somoza of Nicaragua is reported to have received six new planes to bolster his defence against the Sandinista guerrillas and apparently is drafting women.

Meanwhile, a lull continued in the revolution against his family dictatorship. An intercepted rebel radio conversation revealed that the guerrillas of the Sandinista National Liberation Front have suspended plans for major new offensives while they consolidated what they have — control of all the major cities and towns in western Nicaragua except Managua.

A reporter saw two T-28 attack bombers at Managua airport Wednesday and a reliable source said four more of the propeller planes already have been delivered to Somoza.

The source of the planes was not known, but it was suspected that they came from neighboring El Salvador.

The T-28s have bomb racks under the wings, and six of them would greatly increase Somoza's airpower. The national guard, his combined army and police force, has had only two operational T-33 jets used for strafing and rocket attacks, four helicopters from which bombs are kicked out the door and two DC-3s with machine-guns mounted in the door.

Autumn visit by Pope to U.S.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Pope John Paul II plans to visit the United States in the last week of September to address the United Nations and make a cross-country tour of at least four cities, a published report said today.

The Philadelphia Inquirer cited unnamed church sources as saying the pope also has scheduled a meeting with the American Catholic Bishops in Chicago and probably will meet with President and Mrs. Carter.

Among the cities being considered, but not yet agreed upon, are Philadelphia, Detroit, Minneapolis, a Southwestern city and either Los Angeles or San Francisco.

Advance preparation for the visit got under way this week at the State Department, the newspaper said.

The exact itinerary for the visit, expected to last 5 to 10 days, is still uncertain but the pope definitely plans to visit the United Nations during the last week of September after the General Assembly opens its fall session, the paper said.

The last pontiff to visit the United States was Pope Paul VI who went to the United Nations in 1965.

Good luck, ombudsman

The process of choosing someone to fill the job of ombudsman for British Columbia has been slow and painstakingly careful. When the Social Credit government put together the Ombudsman Act it took the best features of several other jurisdictions. Arguably, B.C.'s statute is one of the finest. An all-party committee of the legislature spent many months searching for the best candidate, before hiring 40-year-old law professor Karl Friedmann in January. But he had to wait six months for legislative confirmation.

He was finally sworn in last week. But it will be October before he starts accepting complaints, and then only about provincial government departments.

Slow and steady may be the best approach towards the new job. A low profile will allow Friedmann to get the feel of the job. As someone unfamiliar with the B.C. scene, he will want to be sure of his ground before he accuses some bureaucrat of abrogating a taxpayer's civil rights.

On the other hand, this approach probably suits the politicians who hired him. B.C. legislators in both government and opposition roles are not accustomed to powerful independent agencies acting as a check on their powers.

Every MLA these days fancies himself an ombudsman, making smooth the way for his constituents within the maze of the bureaucracy and — in opposition — exposing scandals that embarrass the government.

Just the sort of thing Alex Macdonald (NDP — Vancouver East) brought to light this week by citing the special privileges granted the Penticton rod and gun club.

The existence of an ombudsman can also be one more excuse for a government, which already has a multitude of dodges, npt to answer a question. "It's under consideration by the ombudsman," may become a common refrain.

These speculations perhaps do an injustice to Friedmann, who in several interviews has stressed that he will run an open office and keep in close touch with the public and press. B.C. may have the finest ombudsman act in the world, but essentially it's the style and personality of the individual which determine the success or failure of the office.

Criminal lawyer Arthur Maloney demonstrated that principle in his four years as Ontario's first ombudsman. He clashed with the government and the opposition on several occasions, over the amount of money he said he needed to hire enough staff and open enough offices to make the ombudsman an effective and independent force.

Most other Canadian provinces have ombudsmen, but they operate quietly and without ruffling their governments too much. Such is their effectiveness as champions of the aggrieved that, aside from Maloney, what other Canadian ombudsman is a familiar name?

Friedmann will decide for himself what path he must follow to get results, but we hope he is more in the mold of Ontario's iconoclastic and precedent-setting first ombudsman. B.C. could do with an outspoken advocate for the rights of the underdog.

Alberta's $1 million

The province of Alberta has shamed the rest of Canada and made a special grant of $1 million to buy supplies for Vietnamese boat people in refugee camps in Thailand and Malaysia. A UN official hopes it "will set an example for the international community."

It is a fine gesture and goes a long way towards redeeming Albertans from the mean and ungenerous image of westerners created last December when their immensely rich government demanded full guarantees for all the costs of settling 50 Vietnamese immigrants in Alberta.

The money amounts to more than a third of what Ottawa has set aside for Asian refugee aid this year. The only other province to help was Quebec, and it could afford only $100,000 although it has agreed to resettle fully half of the 8,000 Indochinese Canada has agreed to take in.

Unfortunately, western hospitality and generosity towards strangers doesn't seem to extend beyond the Rockies. In British Columbia our government still argues about the semantics of a six-year-old pledge of $2.25 million to aid Vietnamese children.

There are always arguments for helping out at home first, but clearly the problems of the poorest British Columbians are not as desperate as those of the Vietnamese refugees. At a time when private groups and charities across the country are organizing to help settle these displaced people, it would be edifying to see more provincial governments emulate Alberta.

The good news — and bad

NEW YORK — In the age of OPEC, Proposition 13, inflation, the Carter administration and the conservative revival, here is an objective report on the way things are:

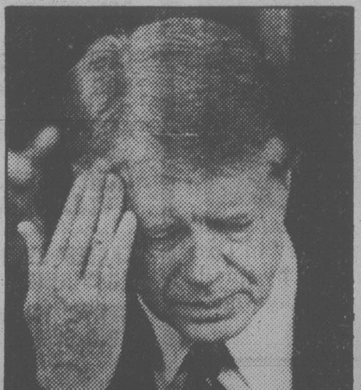
Bureaucrats are bad, but Pentagon officials are good, particularly when warning of the growing Soviet military advantage.

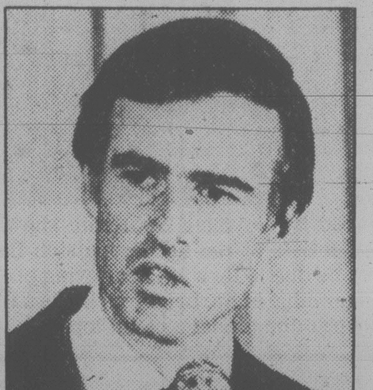
Big government is bad. But $30 billion for the MX missile is good — unless they want to build one of those 20-mile trenches through your backyard. That would be bad.

Inadequate public services like uncollected garbage are bad. Lower taxes are good. If you argue that this is inconsistent, you're a liberal. That's bad.

Candor in a politician is good. But if he tells you that taxes have to go up to get the garbage collected, he is arrogant. That's bad.

Putting forward a policy that calls for higher taxes or public sacrifice is bad. But political leadership is good. Talking about the causes of crime is bad. But talking about getting tough on criminals makes you a conservative and that's good, unless getting tough on criminals requires public spending and higher taxes, which are bad. Better advocate the death penalty, which is good and costs little.





Jimmy and Jerry are both bad, but could be good.

Give 'em the chair

Incentives for the rich to get richer are good, especially if imbedded in the tax system. Welfare for the poor to get less poor is bad. It's worse if it actually does, because that destroys character.

Private risk-taking is good. Government guarantee of return on investment is better. Guidelines to control inflation are good, unless enforced, in which case they become bad.

Government regulation is bad. But air safety, pure food, fuel-efficient automobiles and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. are good.

The marketplace is good, exeept in the form of long lines at the gasoline pump, which are not only bad but un-American. So are the oil companies, but free enterprise is good, except that if it can't provide every American with all the gas he or she wants, maybe the government ought to do something about the oil companies.

Solar energy is good but government investment in solar energy would be bad because all government spending is bad. Let free enterprise, which is good, do the job, except that if it won't, the government ought to do something about that, too.

Inflation is bad, but if you're a businessman, profits are good; if you're a working man, higher wages are good. If you're neither, cat food is good because it beats starvation, which is bad.

Economic opportunity for every American is good, but affirmative action for those who don't have economic opportunity is bad. In fact, it's not affirmative action at all but reverse discrimination, which is worse because it means the reverse of what has traditionally been meant by economic opportunity for every American, which is good.

Job training is good, but government spending to provide jobs is bad. Economic growth that provides jobs is good, but government spending that stimulates economic growth is bad.

Support for democratic elections and majority rule in Rhodesia is good, since Rhodesian whites imposed them under their own rules. But support for democratic elections and majority rule in Rhodesia was bad when the United Nations tried to impose them on the same Rhodesian whites. Calling attention to this is the same as support for black Marxist terrorism. That's terrible.

The third world is bad, but natural resources are good. Oil is the best natural resource, and OPEC is the worst of the third world because it won't let us have its oil cheap. If it did, its members would be a bunch of third-rate banana republics, which are bad too, but not as bad as OPEC.

Smells of Watergate

Saudi Arabia is part of OPEC, which is bad, but Saudi Arabia is good, because it is staunchly anti-communist, strategically located, and deposits a lot of its oil loot in American banks. But Saudi Arabia is bad, too, because it has cut off support for Egypt; it is also bad because it has never given any support to Israel.

Among Democrats, Jimmy Carter is bad. Jerry Brown is bad, unless he knocks off Jimmy Carter in New Hampshire, which would be good because it would bring in Edward Kennedy, who is good too, unless he runs for president, when he will quickly become bad.

Among Republicans, things are simpler. Reagan looks like the Marlboro man, which is good, but he is too old, which is bad. Connally is good because he is a winner, unless he wins, which would be bad because he smells of Watergate, which is the worst. Ford is good because he isn't running, and the other candidates are bad because they are.

Christian Science

The headline of an article reprinted from the Toronto Star in your paper on June 29 asked the question, Christian Science Dying or Another False Obit? Please be assured that Christian Science is alive and well — in British Columbia and Canada, as well as in over 50 countries worldwide.

The Star apparently picked up an earlier Wall Street Journal article which was subsequently corrected by our church. It simply is not true that our church or The Christian Science Monitor are in the sort of dramatic decline reported.

Our church's centennial meeting in Boston last month was told of new interest in church membership in Africa and Latin America, as well as an increase of applicants for accreditation as full-time Christian Science practitioners. The church was reported free of debt and well-supported by membership contributions.

The Monitor's total circulation, according to audit figures which include the new international edition, has remained reasonably stable over the past five years. The Monitor is by no means the only newspaper operating on deficit financing, and it is not news that the church will continue to subsidize the paper, as it has for many years.

The testimony concerning the healing of a child through Christian Science which the Star article mentioned is only one among thousands which have been given spontaneously at Wednesday testimony meetings for over a century. Surely the simple gratitude expressed by that mother shows something of the reason for the continuing vitality of Christian Scientists, even under the heavy pressures of an increasingly secular society.

Recently The Monitor ran a series titled Christian Healing which cited evidence of increasing healing among Christian churches, including interviews and instances of this rebirth of dependence on prayer for physical regeneration as related by members of some 20 denominations.

As for church vitality in B.C., since the first arrivals in Vancouver in 1897 and in Victoria five years later, Christian Scientists have continued to build churches and hold regular services and meetings which are now being held in 35 communities throughout the province, including five college and university campuses.

The two oldest churches in Victoria and Vancouver have undergone extensive remodelling and refurbishing during the past few years, and each report a steady flow of new members. Although the Victoria church at Chambers and Pandora which laid its corner stone in 1919 was recently selected as a heritage building, the Sunday and Wednesday services and the downtown reading room evidence an atmosphere of vitality and well being.

At the centenary meeting in Boston, Harvey W. Wood, chairman of the Christian Science board of directors commented, "In the course of the 100 years since the founding of our church, we've learned there are no easy shortcuts to spiritual growth. It does not come about with the roar of a rocket engine, the dazzling light and the beat of the disco, or the soft or hard sell of a TV commercial." — Edward K. Jones, Christian Science Committee on Publication for B.C.

Politics vs. science

Dr. David Suzuki's recent comment in an address to the Canadian Physiotherapy Association in Victoria on June 13 that "politicians are morons when it comes to understanding science," was no doubt a generalized comment and as such does not therefore include all politicians.

During the recent federal and provincial election campaigns, the Citizens' Association to Save the Environment sent out over 200 questionaires to British Columbia election candidates. The questions covered primarily energy, food, agriculture and education. It was our forlorn hope to cut through the political rhetoric, the repetitious innuendoes, to ascertain the candidates' reasoned attitudes and intentions on these fundamental topics.

Less than 10 per cent of the questionaires were returned. Replies indicated a lamentable comprehension on the topics, especially energy.

One section of the questionaires asked if the candidate had read various documents, such as (to name a few) — Small Is Beautiful by E. F. Schumacher; A Time to Choose: America's Energy Future by the Ford Foundation; Jobs from the Sun by the California Public Policy Study Centre; various publications by the Department of Energy, Mines and Resources, e.g. — Energy Conservation in Cnada, Energy, the Task Ahead, Renewable Energy Resources, An Energy Strategy for Canada — and others.

Of those who replied, most had read less than a quarter of the listed documents.

Numerous phone calls were received from candidates apologizing for not returning the questionaires, comments were: "That's a tough questionaire." "I would have to research many answers." "I haven't read any of the listed documents." "My party has few resolutions on these topics."

In 1971 I presented a brief to the parliamentary environmental committee in Ottawa. Among many of the recommendations in the brief were the following, relevant to oil conservation:

☐ Phasing out the annual planned obsolescence imposed on a gullible public by the car manufacturers (to conserve energy and nonrenewable resources).

☐ Stimulating the development of public transit in urban areas to reduce daily automobile commuting, thereby conserving energy resources.

The reactions to these recommendations from the all party committee members ranged from indifference to hostility. One member pointed out to me that freedom of choice must be upheld. (Since then we have consumed ever-increasing amounts of oil and gasoline by choice, without regard for the future.)

The recommendations were based on data and reports published by the United Nations, international scientists and others of considerable repute! As a mere layman I had expected the federal committee members to be familiar with these documents. How naive I was then!

I realize now many politicians are not the educated generalists they should be, that the game of party politics — one-upmanship — is more important than being knowledgeable to provide the long range guidance for society for its own good.

Though I cannot agree with David Suzuki that "politicians are morons when it comes to understanding science," he is so right when he states: "A people that no longer understands the forces affecting its society has lost all hope of controlling its future." — Derrick Mallard, President, Citizens Association to Save the Environment.

Hospital lottery

On July 20, 1969 astronauts made a big step for mankind. This week we are told that people should not become sick and surgeons should perform fewer operations. Some of those operations possibly might mean the difference between life or death, well, maybe sooner or a little later.

Have we reached the utmost in steps for mankind? Or, are we regressing rapidly, rejoicing with the more fortunate ones who enjoy good health, and are burying in the sands of oblivion our compunction for those who are a blot on the landscape of our ideals because they were unlucky enough to be sick?

Week after week we are told that hospital wards are closing, fewer beds are available. There are insufficient funds. Who, or what is responsible for this I do not pretend to know.

But I think that if we were to look into the financing of hospitals in another country, we might learn much. Through the years the coffers of the Irish hospital sweepstakes have been overflowing to such an extent that hospitals in Ireland are well overfunded. We seem to use our sweeps monies for various sports and such.

What I would like to ask every person in B.C., doctors and hospital management included, is this: Would you prefer having one of our lotteries, the Express for example, or even a new lottery, solely for the funding of our hospitals and health care?

If so, then we could pay our doctors and nurses more attractive salaries, there would be no need to close down wards or cut down on beds available or staff. All areas of health care, and even research, could be funded.

This, then, would indeed be the continuance of making big steps for mankind. So let us hear it for a B.C., or Canadian hospital sweepstakes. We need it. — Mrs. Mary Wight, 2850 Wyndeatt Avenue.

Inter-Cultural

Did you know that Inter-Cultural Association of Victoria is more than a folkfest held in Centennial Square every year or a social club? We help the community by our program in workshops on human rights and group understanding; resource centers — information on multiculturalism; multicultural education services — resource library and program; immigrant service — information, referral, counselling, advocacy and translation; multicultural women's group; citizenship classes; English and other languages etc.; coordination, sponsorship and representation on various multiculture activities, locally and provincially; promote loyalty to Canada and good citizenship.

If you are interested in our work write Mayor Young and ask him for the old Carnegie Public Library on Yates for us and Victoria's needs — Patricia Brandon, Victoria.

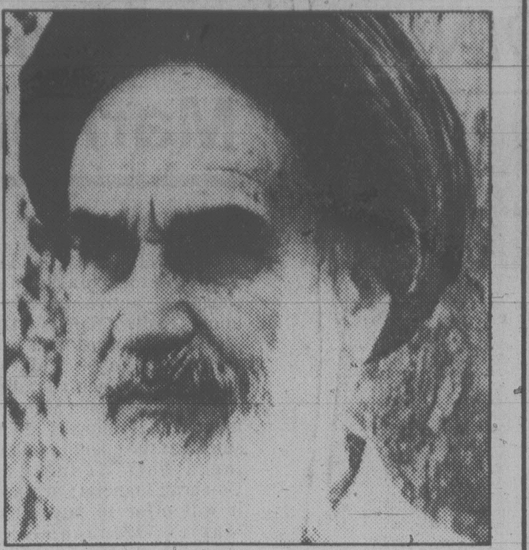
Qom: Holy boom town



'His likeness is everywhere'

QOM, Iran — By late morning the crowd of Moslems had swelled to perhaps 25,000, waiting patiently for a glimpse of their leader. They were packed shoulder to shoulder outside his house, and from time to time someone would push his way to the barricade and ask an armed guard, "Are you sure he's coming?"

Thousands of them had travelled from as far away as Pakistan and Afghanistan. They were here to pray, to see the man whose word is the word of God.

On the outskirts of Qom, hundreds of buses were parked bumper to bumper. They had brought people in from throughout Iran. At least five different groups marched through the center of town, their banners and chants praising the Ayatollah Khomeini. The men were at the front of the procession, often holding hands, and the women, in their black, tent-like chadors, silently brought up the rear.

Spectacle

This excitement, confusion and congestion is a daily spectacle these days in Qom. Almost overnight, this city of 150,000 people, a holy place of the Shia Moslem sect, has been transformed into a religious boom town and the de facto seat of the national government.

The provisional government that Khomeini appointed in Tehran, 75 miles north of here, is little more than a figurehead. Qom is the revolutionary power base, the place where all decisions are made and all edicts are handed down, because this is where Khomeini lives.

Khomeini, 79, has not left Qom since shortly after he returned home from 15 years of exile last January. He sees virtually no one except those who come to pay him homage.

Once a week Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan, 73, and his key cabinet ministers make the two-hour drive from Tehran to discuss national affairs and receive their instructions from Khomeini over an unvarying lunch of yogurt and rice.

There is a steady stream of others — foreign delegations, ambassadors, businessmen, religious leaders, thousands of Iranians with problems that in most countries would be handled by the town council.

And from his modest headquarters near the garbage-strewn Awid River, Khomeini issues the word — on what country will get a contract for a frozen meat, who will be appointed to a senior government position, how the proposed constitution will be ratified.

Khomeini and his closest adviser, his son Saeed Ahmed Khomeini, live in an unpretentious compound, heavily guarded by volunteer Islamic soldiers known as Pasdaran. The ayatollah travels the quarter of a mile from his home to the Faizeyeh religious school, where he usually holds audience. On the roof of his house are two antennae that transmit his directives and speeches to all Iran.

His likeness is everywhere in this dirty, scruffy city, where there is little of beauty to be seen except for the gold-domed, fortress-like, shrine that dominates the city's skyline. Pictures of the ayatollah are carried aloft by marchers, stencilled on brick walls, pasted to the windows of the pilgrims' buses, hung in every shop, sold in six-foot-high portraits for $40 and peddled on saucers, teacups, calendars and all manner of souvenirs.

For most of the country's 35 million people, Khomeini, Iran and Islam all are one. The mere rumor of his pending presence brings tens of thousands into the streets to wait, all day if necessary, for a glimpse of the bearded figure in robes and black turban.

But this devotion — combined with Khomeini's consolidation of power — helps to explain the governmental paralysis in Iran. He and his inner circle of Islamic confidants rule on even the smallest matter, delegating little authority, apparently making little distinction in priority between the affairs of state and the problems of the individual.

Outside his home, under a canvas tarpaulin, two of his representatives receive hundreds of petitioners every day, most of them asking for help with problems of employment or property.

Finally, after the crowd had waited nearly five hours, the familiar figure of Khomeini, small, erect, with bushy eyebrows, appeared on the rooftop, one story above the street. A roar of joy erupted and the crowd surged forward, pressing against the barricade.

Blessing

The crowd stayed on briefly, to savor the moment, then slowly dispersed, moving toward the shrine.

'Better off being a sea lion'

By JOHN HURST
The Los Angeles Times

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — Once upon a time a young blind man named Michael Lee and his seeing-eye dog, Raina, were threatened with eviction from the ramshackle, little house they lived in on the west side of town here.

During the same time a sea lion named Conrad was threatened with eviction from the tank he shared with two female sea lions at the zoo on the east side of town.

The reasons Michael Lee and Conrad the sea lion faced evictions were very different.

Michael Lee, who is 23 and who has been totally blind since he was 13 as a result of a gasoline fire flaring in his eyes, was given notice to move because a new owner had bought the house he rents and plans to move in himself.

Conrad, who is seven years old, faces relocation to the Los Angeles Zoo because the city attorney agreed with complaining neighbors that the sea lion's incessant barking violates the city's animal noise ordinance.

The story of the two evictions began to unfold last week when the local daily paper, the Santa Barbara News Press, printed an article telling of Michael Lee's impending eviction.

Two days later, the News-Press printed a story telling of Conrad's troubles.

After the Michael Lee story appeared, the young man received more than a dozen calls offering help, mostly from people who had living space to share.

Even before the Conrad story appeared, a group called Friends of the Zoo was formed to prevent the sea lion's eviction. And on Sunday protestors congregated at the zoo, giving away SOS (Save Our Sea Lion) balloons and passing out literature, while gathering signatures on petitions to keep Conrad.

While Conrad's defenders were campaigning last week, Michael Lee sat at a home on a rummage-sale sofa and patted Raina as he told of his desire to stay in his working-class neighborhood.

"The neighbors are very nice. All the people in the stores are really helpful," said Michael Lee. "Sometimes Raina likes to get out and go for a cruise and the neighbors always bring her back.

"I really love this neighborhood," he continued. "I could walk around here probably without a dog and without a cane if I had to, because I know all the cracks in the sidewalks."

He learned about some of those sidewalk cracks by riding a skateboard pulled by his big, gentle black labrador.

But with a disability income of $380 per month, Michael Lee was not optimistic about finding a place suitable for himself and his dog anywhere in rental-tight Santa Barbara.

And, although he has received offers to share living quarters, Michael Lee is reluctant to give up the degree of independence he has been able to attain after 10 years of blindness.

In the meantime, the new owner is seeking eviction along with damages for Michael Lee's refusal to pay rent since he was given notice to vacate in late May.

The best Michael Lee can hope for, according to an attorney, is more time to find a place to live and rejection by the court of the landlord's demand for damages.

Robert Bonar, new owner of Michael Lee's residence, said that he plans to renovate the house and move into it with his family.

"I tried to work with the gentleman," he said of Michael Lee, "but I need the house for my own use. It's either he goes out or I stay on the street."

Meanwhile, Conrad the sea lion's supporters were fighting his eviction.

Basically, the case against Conrad, the sole bull sea lion at the Santa Barbara zoo, is that he barks too loud and too long, in violation of a city ordinance regulating animal noise.

Writer Ted Berkman and more than 20 other residents of apartments adjacent to the zoological gardens signed a petition in April demanding that something be done about Conrad's noise.

"The problem is this sea lion in the month of June, for example, for about eight nights running was sounding off between 2 a.m. and 5 a.m. for a period of two hours, blasting into the otherwise tranquil night," Berkman, whose work includes the novel, Cast a Giant Shadow, said.

"When I say 'blasting' I don't mean a puppy squeak," the writer continued. "It's a sound between a bray, a bark and a yelp. And this will go on for a couple of hours. I defy any normal person to sleep through it."

Other residents said they need earplugs to sleep and there were complaints that Conrad sometimes barks from morning until late at night with only short breaks of silence.

Some tenants want Conrad to stay, however, and Berkman and some of the others who have complained actually moved into the apartment house after Conrad arrived at the zoo in November, 1977. The apartment complex itself was built after the zoo was established.

Nevertheless, City Attorney Fred Clough, who said he has personally heard the animal bark from a distance of three miles, concluded that Conrad violates the city's noise ordinance regardless of who came first.

After meeting with the city council, Clough offered the zoo an exemption from the city noise ordinance effective after Conrad's departure.

The zoo directors accepted, and officials reluctantly arranged for Conrad, who is considered a potentially good breeder, to go to the Los Angeles Zoo. But no date has been set for a move and zoo officials and volunteers, pointing out the difficulty in obtaining breeding bull sea lions, have made no secret of their hope that Conrad's Friends of the Zoo will be able to pressure the city council into reconsidering.

"If they bring enough pressure to bear, we wouldn't be adverse to it at all," Susan Engfer, assistant director of the Santa Barbara Zoological Gardens, said.

"This is much more than a backyard dog disturbing neighbors," Terry Heinz, a zoo volunteer worker who is active in Friends of the Zoo, said. "If that sea lion leaves, that could well be the end of the whole sea lion exhibit here. It could be very detrimental to the community."

By Sunday afternoon, Friends of the Zoo had gathered hundreds, and possibly thousands, of signatures on petitions to keep Conrad in Santa Barbara.

If you are threatened with eviction, you are better off being a sea lion than a blind man.

Or, as Michael Lee put it: "It just shows you, I guess, that society likes to get behind a sea lion more than it does a person."

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

It was most wrong — and really very silly — for the Canadian government to advise the Queen not to meet the Canadian Indian leaders who went to London to discuss the constitution. The Queen had no choice but to follow the advice of her Canadian ministers; but they gave her, as the Indians have pointed out, the wrong advice.

The Throne has always had a special place with Canada's native people. The treaties they signed were with the Crown. The most hopeful discussions they have had — at least in recent times — have been with the Queen. That 300 of their leaders should be told that instead of going to London to meet the Queen, they should go to Ottawa to meet the governor-general, was a slap in the face.

It was a slap, moreover, that has given the 300 far more publicity than they would have received if they had met the Queen, and far more publicity for their cause. That cause is justifiable: That in any discussion about changing the constitution they, like the French and the English, should be considered as founding peoples. They were here first.

This, now that they have been turned away from Buckingham Palace on the advice of the Canadian cabinet, will be noted and remembered by a great many people who may not have considered it before.

Divorce pole too greasy?

Katharine Whitehorn

Your hear a lot about the agony of a wife who has to choose between her own well-paid job or following her husband to the ends of the earth; not so often about the same thing the other way round.

But that's what faced Robert Southan seven years ago when his wife, now Judge Elizabeth Evatt, was first offered a "once in a lifetime" job (Deputy President of the Arbitration Commission) in Australia in 1973 — and he was an Englishman, and they were living in London.

"I had 24 hours to make up my mind," she remembers. "The Prime Minister was under pressure — he was in a hurry."

She went, and her husband in the end came too, after going out for extended visits for the first year or two; and there they now live with their children who are 16 and 10. A pretty strong marriage it must be, to have taken such strains — as well as the inevitable problems of a wife who works: "How did I manage?" she says. "Like everyone else — with difficulty!"

One cannot imagine this spare, sincere, brilliant woman, her sallow appearance enlivened by an engaging, lopsided grin, giving up any challenge. She has forthright views about all the upheavals in marriage patterns and family law that we've been seeing; she became chairman of the Royal Commission on Human Relationships in 1974.

I talked to her when she was through London this summer, and admired her — of course. But by the end of it I couldn't help wondering if the extraordinary resilience of her own marriage mightn't have blinded her to at least one fact about the marriages of other people: That they do get pushed around by outside factors — and that one of the outside factors is the sheer fact of easy or difficult divorce.

Elizabeth worked in London with the Law Commission for years; she was here when British law was changing to make marriage breakdown the only reason for divorce, to make it impossible for one party to hold out indefinitely against it; and did its not very successful best to make sure that no one needs to be called "guilty." (When it comes to maintenance and who's to have the children, the question of who's behaved badly does, of course, come into it.)

Britain, too, fell over backwards to try to give a divorced wife as much of a share of the marital cake as if she'd stayed married; which results in an enormous amount of the maintenance that's awarded by the courts never getting paid at all. (Elizabeth says it's much the same in Australia.)

And there's an increasingly shrill lobby of divorced men who don't see why they should support ex-wives who are sound in wind and limb. Judge Evatt certainly thought the Australian system, where the maintenance relates to a wife's actual job prospects, more realistic — and perhaps less humiliating.

We agreed about so much: That marriage breaks down because of the ludicrously high expectations people have of it; that once a marriage is on the rocks, the thing that matters most is the welfare of the children. She was interesting on the subject of the children's preference: She felt it was often searing for a child to be asked to choose between the two parents, as what they mostly want, of course, is both parents — if only they'd stay together and stop fighting.

But she, like so many people in Britain, still talks about very quick, very easy divorce as a reform. I simply couldn't get her to consider that difficult divorce might have its uses — that where you can get a divorce as easily as a theatre ticket, too many people fly apart irrevocably, though if the way out had been as tough as the way forward, they might have stayed with the marriage and made it work again.

She left, unfortunately, before a new British TV series called Divorce and After had been shown; I wish she'd seen it. The first program showed people who had gone through very clean divorces — no hassle, not too much squabbling. Yet they were filled with overwhelming regret: "If only I'd stuck it out!" said a man. And a woman said she'd yelled: "All right, go then!" She hadn't meant it; it was a [illegible] for help. But once he'd gone there was no putting the clock back.

The other day I asked a man in my office for money for a battered wives' home. "I run a battered husbands' home," he said wryly. No less than three friends, it seemed, had, one by one, moved into his London apartment when they left home. They led a pretty bleak existence there, washing their own socks, making their own tea in tin mugs: "Every one of them went back to his wife in the end."

In industrial relations, in adoption, in signing on for hire purchase, enlightened thinking is now all in favor of a cooling-off period — of making it harder, not easier, to get to a point of no return. Why is it just in divorce that "reform" consists of being able to sign away, without a backward glance, a future that might still have worked?

Iran squeeze firm goes on the block

MONTREAL (CP) — Stadler Hurter Ltd., caught in dire financial straits after two big projects were disrupted by revolution in Iran, has been put up for sale by its Houston-based parent corporation.

Alex Pezdek, Stadler Hurter president, said that International Systems and Controls Corp. (ISC) has spoken to "half a dozen companies" interested in acquiring the Montreal-based pulp and paper engineering company.

"We need a financial partner, and it can't be ISC because it's got its own trouble," Pezdek said, referring to allegations by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Committee that ISC paid $23 million in bribes in connection with contracts totalling $250 million signed in 1973 and 1974 to build pulp and paper mills in Iran.

Pezdek said potential buyers of Stadler Hurter include a West German manufacturing and engineering corporation, Klockner GmbH, and various Canadian companies which he refused to name.

Imasco earnings hit $56.4 million

MONTREAL (CP) — Imasco Ltd., one of Canada's largest business conglomerates, announced at its 67th annual meeting Wednesday that earnings in the fiscal year ended March 31 reached $56.4 million before extraordinary items, 31 per cent higher than a year earlier.

Earnings per share on a fully diluted basis were $5.40 compared with $4.42 in the previous year, an increase of 22 per cent, said newly-named president Edmond Ricard. Extraordinary items added $1.3 million to earnings.

Total sales of all divisions of the tobacco, retailing and food processing conglomerate inreased 48 per cent to $1.587 billion.

Imasco chairman Paul Pare, formerly company president, once again denounced moves aimed at splitting Quebec from Canada, and he attacked Parti Quebecois plans to hold an independence referendum in the spring.

"A referendum . . . leaves the impression of being no more than an exaggerated public opinion poll and, when conducted by a party with a vested interest in the outcome, its validity as an indication of public wishes is questionable," Pare said.

During the year Imasco contributed $31,600 "to federal and provincial parties which support the principle of a strong private sector and the unity of Canada" and an additional $50,000 to the Pro-Canada Foundation, a Montreal-based federalist organization.

The meeting was told that Imperial Tobacco Ltd. of Montreal, Imasco's biggest subsidiary, showed sales of $741 million, an increase of 13 per cent, and operating earnings totalled nearly $79 million, up 15 per cent. Cigarette prices increased by about 10 per cent and sales rose about two per cent despite health warnings.

Imperial Tobacco, which makes Player's, du Maurier, Matinee, Peter Jackson, Cameo and other popular brands of cigarettes, saw its share of the Canadian tobacco market rise to 42 per cent from 40 per cent a year earlier. Through General Cigar Co. Ltd. of Montreal, it holds 87 per cent of the cigar market.

Pare said later the unexpected rise in cigarette sales, spurred by the success of low-tar brands, has tightened Imasco's cash position because the company has to make new investments in machinery and inventory.

Sales in Imasco's food processing division dropped 10 per cent to $198 million, largely because of the sale of troubled U.S. holdings. But earnings from food operations increased 58 per cent to $14 million.

Imasco-owned Unico Foods Ltd. of Toronto and Grissol Foods Ltd. of Montreal, along with its Taillefer prepared meats, Bisuits Montmagny and Viau biscuits divisions, all showed rises.

Earnings from retail operations, meanwhile, were $22 million, several times higher than a year earlier.

Sales were up 205 per cent to $674 million, largely because of the acquisition of Shoppers Drug Mart stores and Embassy Cleaners by Imasco unit Koffler Stores Ltd. of Toronto. Shoppers Drug Mart owns the Top Drug Mart chain and 50 per cent of the Pharmaprix chain.

Sales of the United Cigar Store group, which includes the money-losing Collegiate Sports and Arlington Sports stores, as well as men's fashion stores and tobacco-shop franchiser The Tinder Box International Ltd. of Santa Monica, Calif., increased 10 per cent.

Revenge for small brewery?

TORONTO (CP) — With perhaps a glint of revenge in its eye, Northern Breweries Ltd. of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., is trying to win a share of the thirsty Toronto beer market.

The small independent has launched a $100,000 radio and newspaper advertising campaign with its sights on getting half of one per cent of Toronto sales.

Reaching that modest market share against dominating John Labatt Ltd., Molson Companies Ltd. and Carling O'Keefe Ltd. would be a major victory for the brewery, which two years ago was on the brink of liquidation.

Eight years ago, Carling outbid a group of employees led by John Coulter for Doran's Northern Breweries with a $3.8-million cash offer.

By 1977, Doran's share of the market dropped to three per cent from 12 per cent and Carling was ready to liquidate the company.

The workers pooled their resources again and with the backing of banks and credit unions in several Northern Ontario communities Doran's became the first employee-owned brewery in North America.

Under the new company name, the move into southern Ontario "has been faster than we planned," said president Ross Eaket.

Many outlets have run out of the brewery's sample pack of its brews despite capacity production of 5,000 cases a day.

Volvo pact

HALIFAX (CP) — Volvo Canada Ltd. and the United Auto Workers have reached agreement on a new contract which Gunnar Jennergen, Volvo plant manager, said gives the 165 workers increases wirth 31.5 per cent over three years.

For high production and low cost per yard, Progressive Contracting chose the Cat D5B Tractor.

It was the first tractor buy for Progressive Contracting Ltd. of Richmond. It had to be right. So equipment manager Bill Den Duyf rented a Cat D5 Tractor and worked it for six months. Hard. He liked its power, its performance, its production. Now, Progressive's new D5B is spreading over 100,000 cu.ft. of sandstone fill to a depth of four feet over fifteen acres of a new subdivision in Richmond—productively and profitably.

For dozing dirt, ripping rock, grading, backfilling, landscaping and utility work, the D5B gives you big tractor features in a mid-size machine: power to spare from the gutsy 638 cu.in. displacement Cat 3306 diesel engine; powershift transmission for single-lever, on-the-go shifting under full load; a sealed and lubricated track for long wear life and low maintenance; and a range of work tools as tough-built as the machines they serve.

But if they're tough to beat, they're easy to buy. Finning will design a flexible lease, purchase or rental plan keyed to your type of operation, your type of jobs. And we'll make sure your Cat D5B Tractor keeps working and earning—with unmatched Cat Plus service through 51 Finning locations.

Make your first buy a tractor that will last: the D5B.

Trade agreement greeted by delight, caution

Canadian Press

Industry reaction to details of the Geneva trade talks released in Ottawa on Wednesday ranged from delight to caution.

"We're delighted with the tariff concessions made by Canada," said Keith G. Dixon, president of the Canadian Importers Association.

The Geneva agreement, released in capitals around the world, calls for reductions in Canadian import duties averaging 40 per cent spread over eight years beginning Jan. 1, 1980.

The cuts, part of the new General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, also gives Canadian exporters greater access to some of the biggest markets in the world, including the United States, Japan and the European Economic Community.

"It should reduce consumer prices, starting Jan. 1," said Dixon. "And it's bound to be anti-inflationary."

Roy A. Phillips, executive director of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said the new trade pact places the onus on Canadian manufacturers, labor and governments to "do all they can to maintain and improve the competitiveness of Canadian products and services and to increase our exports to all corners of the world."

He urged the government to act in concert with other GATT members to ensure compliance with terms of the deal and not act unilaterally to raise tariffs as Canada did after the Kennedy round of trade talks that led to a loss of jobs.

"While many opinions of the deal will be expressed, the fact is that no one can tell whether any one nation has made any great gain or loss in terms of net benefit."

Ontario Industry Minister Larry Grossman called on the federal government to assist industry to adjust to the new trading environment.

Grossman said Canada's negotiators won important concessions where Ontario is especially strong in international competition, such as in aircraft parts, agricultural equipment, pulp and paper machinery and certain agricultural and forest products.

The Canadian Chemical Producers' Association, which represents 95 per cent of Canada's industrial chemical production, said Canada appears to have gained as much as it gave.

"The tariff reductions agreed to for industrial chemicals by Canada and its major trading partners are generally smaller than had initially been expected," the association said.

Thus, the new deal would not significantly change trading patterns and volumes between Canada and the U.S.

Tariffs have been eliminated between the two countries in heavy inorganic chemicals. "It is expected that two-way trade will expand moderately and result in a net gain for Canada."

The association described the new tariffs for some key petrochemicals as a disappointment. Canada's tariff protection in this field has historically been much lower than the European and U.S. rates.

"After the cuts agreed to in this negotiating round have been fully implemented, Canada's rates will still be the lowest, but the gap will have been narrowed significantly."

Dixon said the tariff on imported cars will drop to 9.2 per cent from 15 per cent over eight years. There would be tariff reductions on practically all imported products except textiles and shoes.

Grossman estimated that by 1988, Canadian manufacturers would have duty-free access into the U.S. market for about 80 per cent of all exports to that country, compared to 66 per cent at present.

'Rocks just romp behind big Larry

Drifter first across in Trans-Pacific race

HONOLULU (AP) — The 69-foot sloop Drifter from Long Beach, Calif., crossed the finish line first at 4:01 a.m. local time today in the 1979 trans-Pacific yacht race.

Her closest follower, Ragime, was not expected to cross the Diamond Head finish line until about 1 p.m.

Light winds turned this year's race into one of the slowest in the 30-year-history of the crossing. Drifter was more than four days off the 1977 record, set by Merlin in a time of eight days, 11 hours and 45 seconds. This year's race began on June 30.

Only a brief, late-game horror show marred what otherwise was a fine Shamrock performance at Memorial Arena Wednesday.

The Shamrocks had come out running and gunning against arch-rival Vancouver Burrards, were on top 9-1 after one period, 12-3 after two and won breezing, 18-4.

Granted Burrards were below par numerically, but the final tally was probably the worst beating Burrards have ever received here.

Victory moved the Rocks one point ahead of Coquitlam Adanacs in second place in the Western Lacrosse Association race and two points behind leading New Westminster Salmonbellies whom they meet tonight at New Westminster.

Rocks have three games in hand over the 'Bellies and two over Coquitlam.

Goalkeeper Larry Smeltzer was the biggest star and the architect of victory for the Irish. He stopped 15 shots in that first period, had 17 saves in the second and he stopped 12 more in the third period before going on stage along with most everyone else in the third-period donnybrook.

His domination of the game is reflected in the fact that two of the Burrard goals came off the power play.

Burrard goalie Kelvin Gill was the victim of the first-period onslaught. Regular 'keeper Dave Evans took over and kept things respectable in the second and for as long as he played in the third. But his fine work was to no avail. The game had been lost early and it showed in Burrards' play.

And perhaps it was that frustration that triggered the melee in the third.

Ron Pinder started it by cross checking Bill Marechek of the Rocks to the floor and then taking another shot at Marechek who appeared to lash back wih his feet while down. The Rocks then closed in on Pinder. Burrards came to his defence. Gill came out slashing with his big goalie's stick and Smeltzer rushed the length of the floor to take on Gill. The battle was over in about a minute, but it took the officials about 10 minutes to get the penalties straightened out and 10 players banished.

In the end result, Pinder got a minor and a major, Marechek a major and five players from each team received game misconducts.

They were: for Burrards — Dan Perrault, Mike McMillan, Stuart Aird, Doug Hayes and Gill; for Shamrocks — Dave Louden, Chris Hall, Dave Thomson, Ivan Thompson and Smeltzer.

After that it was a complete penalty time mixup — by game officials, not the penalty timekeeper — which finally ended with the Shamrocks having seven players on the floor when Rick Baker scored the final goal with 17 seconds to play. And nobody complained.

It was the first game back for Thompson since early in the season. He looked a little rusty and maybe a little heavier. But then it's been an idle summer. It was also the first game back for Thomsen since injuring his shoulder in Vancouver two weeks ago. He seemed fit enough as he scored two of the first three Irish goals.

Rick Baker and Kevin Alexander each scored three goals for the Irish. Alexander also had three assists, Bob Cool had two goals and four assists, Ranjit Dillon got two goals, both on breaks, and two assists to run his WLA point total to 1,197, while singles went to Dan Green, Andy Reid, Art Webster, Hall, Marechek and Steve Buckley.

McMillan scored three goals for Burrards and Perrault the other.

Records fall and one is blown away

SAN JUAN (CP) — Three Pan-American Games records were set at Sixto Escobar Stadium Wednesday and a fourth was blown away by a following wind.

All three Games marks belonged to United States athletes as the Americans claimed five of the six gold medals awarded in track and field and five of seven overall.

Renaldo Nehemiah, who took the world record for the 110-metre hurdles away from Cuban Alejandro Casanas early this year, beat him again Wednesday in 13.20 seconds. That was well off the youngster's world mark of 13 flat but shattered the Games standard of 13.4, which had stood since 1967.

The other records were set in field events as Mac Wilkins hurled the discus 63.30 metres and Franklin Jacobs cleared the bar at 2.26 metres in the high jump.

Both 100-metre champion Evelyn Ashford of the U.S. and the surprising Angela Taylor of Toronto surpassed American Chandra Cheeseborough's four-year-old Games mark of 22.77 in the 200-metre final but a following wind wiped out their achievement. Ashford was clocked in 22.24 and Taylor in 22.74.

The wind blew in other quarters as Mexican officials appealed unsuccessfully on behalf of bronze medallist Rodolfo Gomez that Americans Matt Centrowitz and Herbert Lindsay, who finished ahead of him in the 5,000 metres, had interfered with his progress. Gomez dissociated himself from the protest.

The Brazilians had better luck, persuading track officials to lift their disqualification of Delmo da Silva for straying from his lane in a qualifying heat of the 400 metres. But the reprieved runner failed to survive the semi-finals.

And Alberto Juantorena, who had troubles enough staying with the leaders in the 400 after being upset in the 800-metre final two days earlier, found himself confronted at trackside by a vehement Cuban exile anxious to air her views on the way Fidel Castro was running the country.

When the shouting subsided, the Americans were on top of the gold medal standings with 90 to Cuba's 51 and Canada's 20.

Toronto high-jumper Milt Ottey won a bronze medal and just missed a silver as he and Ben Fields both cleared 2.19 metres but the American was placed higher because of fewer missed jumps.

The Quebec pair of Nicole Marois and Helen Pelletier reached the final of the women's doubles of the tournament to preserve Canada's last chance for a gold medal in the sport. Wendy Barlow of Victoria and Josef Brabenec of Vancouver lost their mixed doubles semi-final but still had a chance for a bronze.

The Canadian men's and women's basketball teams, both fighting for bronze medals, won their games as the men avenged an earlier loss to Argentina with a 93-78 victory and the women breezed past Puerto Rico 93-81.

A 5-0 defeat by the United States jolted the title hopes of Canada's entry in women's softball after the Canadians had beaten El Salvador 3-0 earlier in the day.

The Canadian men's team (Victoria Budgets), idle Wednesday, plays United States today in a playoff

The men's volleyball team lost 3-1 to the U.S. but still had faint hopes of a bronze.

History was made in the baseball tournament when the Americans suffered their third defeat at the hands of Cuba and were knocked out of the medal competition for the first time in Games history. The unbeaten Cubans, Puerto Rico and Dominican Republic were the only teams left in the medal hunt.

Dutch superstar sinks Whitecaps

Times News Services

Dutch superstar Johan Cruyff gave Vancouver Whitecaps more than they could handle in leading visiting Los Angeles Aztecs to a 1-0 victory Wednesday night in a North American Soccer League game.

Cruyff scored the game's only goal as the Aztecs moved into a first-place tie with Vancouver in the Western division of the National conference.

A near-capacity crowd of 28,764 came to Empire Stadium to witness Cruyff and a collision of the division's top teams. The most valuable player in the 1974 World Cup did not disappoint his admirers.

The win gave Los Angeles a 13-8 record and 115 points, the same as the Whitecaps.

Elsewhere in the league, Minnesota Kicks edged Chicago Sting 5-4 for their sixth straight victory, Fort Lauderdale Strikers defeated San Diego Sockers 3-2, Seattle Sounders got past New York Cosmos 2-1, Toronto Blizzard blanked Rochester Lancers 3-0, New England Tea Men edged Edmonton Drillers 3-2, Tampa Bay Rowdies walloped California Surf 6-2, Portland Timbers shut out Tulsa Roughnecks 1-0 and San Jose Earthquakes defeated Philadelphia Fury, 5-4.

Cruyff's goal was his eighth in 14 games since signing a 2-year, $1.4 million agreement with the Aztecs.

Los Angeles used its height differential to advantage in the first 45 minutes and continually beat Vancouver to the ball in the air.

Cruyff scored in the 26th minute with a brilliant manoeuvre just inside the box. He skillfully took down a ball from Bob Sibbald on his chest, hesitated momentarily, then turned quickly and drilled a low shot into the far corner of the net.

Both goalkeepers were busy in the wide-open first half. Colin Boulton of the Aztecs made a diving save on Bobby Lenarduzzi from 15 yards after a give-and-go play with Derek Possee, and Vancouver's Phil Parkes came up with a sprawling stop on a hard drive by Thomas Rongen.

The second half slowed down and Los Angeles was content to kick the ball out of danger. Boulton was sharp in calmly stopping two dangerous headers by Trevor Whymark, who moved up from Vancouver's backline to the attack on numerous occasions.

Referee Artie Wachter issued yellow card warnings to Cruyff and Willie Johnston of the Whitecaps after a sideline incident in which Johnston appeared to throw the ball at Cruyff's face.

Vancouver outshot Los Angeles 15-7 and Boulton had five saves to just one by Parkes.

The teams meet again Aug. 4 in the Rose Bowl.

Cruyff said he got the shot away he wanted on the goal — hard and low.

"I knew what I was going to do and the defenders had to look at both me and the ball," he said. "I just pivoted and shot and I really didn't know where the net was."

Coach Rinus Michels said the game was the Aztecs' best of the season and his four defenders did an excellent job of cutting off crosses by Johnston.

"The midfielders dropped back and helped cut down on the open space," said Michels. "You can only do that if you get the first goal and Cruyff has the ability to do that."

Coach Tony Waiters said his Whitecaps were "simply awful" and much too tentative on attack.

"Los Angeles played extremely well and they are well organized and extremely competitive," he said. "They have that touch of class (Cruyff) and that class was the difference."

Midfielder Alan Ball of the Whitecaps said Michels deserves a lot of credit for the Los Angeles game plan which shut down the Vancouver attack.

"They marked our six men up front well," Ball said. "And they stuck away their only good scoring chance."

Larry was the Key to lead Leo victory

Times News Services

Running back Larry Key scored two second-half touchdowns Wednesday at Regina to power the British Columbia Lions to a 28-4 Western Football Conference win over the Saskatchewan Roughriders.

The game was the first of the season for both clubs and didn't provide much excitement for the opening night crowd of 19,030.

In the other season opener in Ottawa, quarterback Condredge Holloway proved Wednesday he can do the job as the hometown Rough Riders defeated Hamilton Tiger Cats 30-19 before 21,674 fans.

Until the Lions exploded for three touchdowns in the second half, the game had been marked by strong defensive play. The Roughriders, who held a 4-3 lead after the first quarter, failed to score a point or even threaten seriously through the final three quarters.

Lions held a 6-4 lead at the half and opened a 14-4 margin heading into the final quarter.

Key was the major figure in the Lion's offence all night. He broke open what had been a tight game in the third quarter when he darted in from two yards out. Key's other touchdown came on a one-yard, fourth-quarter plunge and backfield mate John Henry White scampered in from 12 yards to get the other B.C. major.

Lui Passaglia converted all three touchdowns, added field goals of 25 and 32 yards and a 46-yard single.

Kicker Bob Macoritti offered the only Saskatchwean scoring. He opened the scoring with a 46-yard field goal and kicked a 22-yard single.

The Lions held good field position on a number of occasions, but it wasn't until the third quarter that they capitalized.

Saskatchewan quarterback Tom Clements and rookie Canadian running back Jim Duncan mishandled a handoff deep in Roughrider territory. Lions' defensive end Drew Taylor recovered the fumble on the Saskatchewan two-yard line. Key scored his first major on the next play. The touchdown gave the Lions momementum as their offence came to life with two more touchdowns before the game ended.

Although White scored the touchdown, Key played a central part in the drive, carrying the ball three consecutive times for 23, 11 and 18 yards respectively before White went in for the touchdown. The drive began when the Lions held the Roughriders on a third and four-yard gamble at the B.C. 46-yard line about midway through the fourth quarter.

In Ottawa, Holloway threw for three touchdowns and passed for 244 yards.

He joined the club with Tom Clements in 1976, but was relegated to the back up job until this season when Clements was traded to Saskatchewan Roughriders.

"That's the way it had to be," Holloway said after the game Wednesday. "I believed in the two quarterback system and we had to make it work."

Ohhh! What the Mariners did to the Yankees' ace

By The Associated Press

No doubt Tommy John will have nightmares about what happened to him in the first inning of Wednesday night's American League baseball contest with Seattle Mariners.

Mario Mendoza's blasted a two-run triple and Ruppert Jones smacked a two-run homer and the hometown Mariners scored nine times during the inning en route to a 16-1 romp over New York Yankees.

The Mariners, who have won 13 of the last 16 games between the teams in Seattle, sent 12 batters to the plate in the inning. John, the American League leader in victories with 13 and earned run average by a starter at 2.23, was lifted after retiring just one batter.

By then, the Mariners were ahead 5-0. John finally was charged with seven runs.

Elsewhere in the American League, Baltimore Orioles downed Oakland A's 3-1, Milwaukee Brewers edged Toronto Blue Jays 2-1 in 10 innings, Cleveland Indians squeezed past Kansas City Royals 9-8, Minnesota Twins shut out Detroit Tigers 3-0, Chicago White Sox downed Texas Rangeres 5-3 and Boston Red Sox whipped California Angels 9-3.

Meanwhile, if Atlanta Braves still think Rowland Office is expendable, at least they know he's making himself a valuable commodity.

"Rowland Office had a great night," Braves manager Bobby Cox said after his team edged Chicago Cubs 6-5 in National League baseball play.

Office, frequently mentioned as trade bait during spring training and up until the June deadline for interleague trading, had three hits. He broke a 2-2 tie in the fifth inning with a two-run double and slumping Bob Horner followed with a two-run homer, putting Atlanta ahead to stay.

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh Pirates beat Houston 5-1, handing the Astros their fifth consecutive loss; San Diego Padres blasted Philadelphia Phillies 7-3; New York Mets edged Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3 in 10 innings; Sanf Francisco Giants nipped Montreal Expos 1-0 and Cincinnati Reds beat St. Louis Cardinals 6-1.

Seattle finished with five runs in the seventh, with a two-run single by Tom Paciorek and an RBI infield hit by Mendoza complementing Leon Roberts's homer.

Eddie Murray collected three hits, including his 10th homer of the year, and Gary Roenicke slugged his 15th homer to lead Baltimore. The homers and Doug DeCinces's run-scoring single were all pitcher Dennis Mar⅝Pil 11-6, needed to complete his 11th games in 22 starts.

Seniors battle tough greens

ST. ANDREWS — The tough greens on the Algonquin Golf Club couse took their toll Wednesday, keeping scores up for the 209 golfers playing in the first round of the 54-hole Canadian senior men's golf championship.

Nick Weslock of Oakville, Ont., shot a two-under-par 69 to tie for the lead with Chal Graham of Peterborough, Ont.

Only two other golfers managed to par the course on the first day — Louis Beatty of Woodstock, N.B., and Bill Tait of Calgary, tied for third with 71s.

Weslock, Beatty and Tait — all playing for their province's teams in the 36-hole team championship as well as in the 54-hole individual match — helped their squads stay in front after first-round play.

Ontario, with 223 total strokes for the best three of four golfers, is one stroke ahead of New Brunswick and Alberta.

Quebec was fourth with 230, British Columbia fifth at 231.

Percy Barradell of Mission is alone in fifth place in individual standings with a 73, followed by Curt Christophe of Dorion, Que., Bruce Pelmore of Victoria and Barrie Sanders of Carman, Man., all with 74.

Car slalom series to begin saturday

Members of the Vancouver Island Rally Racing Association will be staging the inaugural event in the Speedline Quick Silver Cup Challenge series starting at 12 noon at Clover Point.

The car slalom, set against a backdrop of Juan de Fuca Strait and the Olympics, is expected to attract over 40 of the top slalom drivers on Vancouver Island.

The series will continue through the summer at the same site.

The race involves two laps of a tight twisty course around the Clover Point loop — following a different route through the pylons on each circuit.

Robertson's bat barks to pace Seaboard win

Seaboard romped to an 11-4 win over K&R Sooke at Sooke Athletic Park while Tally-Ho blanked Juan de Fuca Builders 4-0 at Central park.

Catcher Tom Robertson hit two home runs to do most of the damage for Seaboard while Terry Barwiss and Norm Goudie hit homers in vain for Sooke.

John Barnes hurled a five-hitter to lead Tally-Ho to a win which was aided by four Juan de Fuca errors.

At Heywood Avenue Park, Gary Wilyman came up with four hits and Gary Appleton drove in two runs as Ingraham Hotel dropped Mears Realty 9-5 in a Heywood Men's League game.

At Hyacinth Park, Nancy McLachlan hurled a five-hitter as VI 90 tripped Island Dryco Breakers 5-2 and Sharon Ferrill threw a five-hitter as Capital City Pirates nipped Esquimalt Combos 4-3 in Victoria Senior Women's League games.

Lori Skinner hit two doubles and Cindy Smith bashed a double and a single to drive in three runs for VI 90.

Kelvin Harrison and Randy Keller bashed bases-loaded doubles in the first two innings and Dean Potter came up with some solid pitching to help Cosmopolitans defeat Quadra Warehouse 6-2 in a Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League game Wednesday at Lambrick Park.

Potter struck out nine batters, yielded only three bases on balls and was unscored on after the third inning.

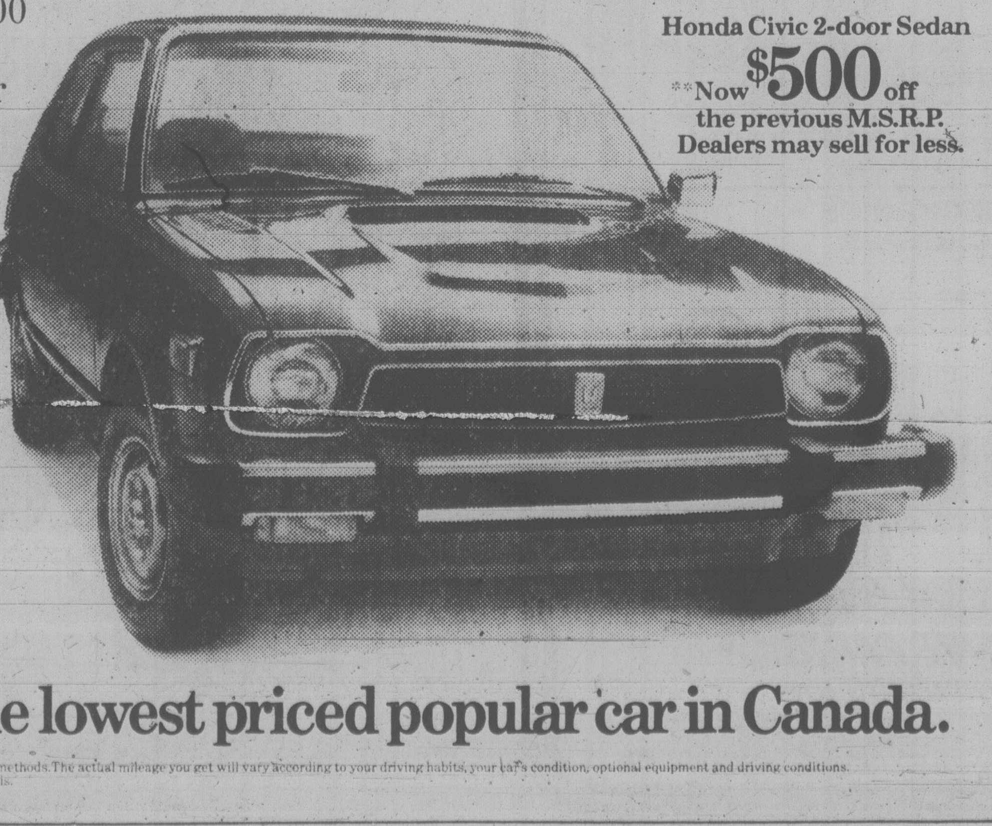
Based on manufacturer's suggested retail prices of May 22, 1979. Honda price includes $500 deduction from manufacturer's previous suggested retail price. Local freight, pre-delivery inspection and local taxes extra. A dealer may sell for less.

Yesterday, we used to measure a car's fuel economy in the number of miles per gallon it got. Measured that way Hondas were incredibly economical. Today, they measure economy in the number of litres per hundred kilometers. The Civic Sedan uses 7.1 litres per 100 km. or 39 MPG* and the CVCC uses 6.2 litres per 100 km., or 45 MPG.* Measured this way, Hondas are still incredibly economical. And either way, they do it on regular gas.

Whether you look at the mileage the old way or the new way, there's only one way to look at this summer's Civic prices. They're new. Right now the manufacturer's previous suggested list price has been reduced by $500 on a Civic Sedan or CVCC and $400 on a Civic Hatchback or Station Wagon. And they still come with almost everything on. Front wheel drive, independent suspension, tinted windows, reclining bucket seats, carpeting and much more are all still on. And all still standard. So this summer, if you're looking for something new, look at the new Civic prices at your Honda dealer, now.

Honda Civic 2-door Sedan
Now $500 off the previous M.S.R.P. Dealers may sell for less.



Honda Civic. Now the lowest priced popular car in Canada.

*These figures are estimates based on Transport Canada approved laboratory test methods. The actual mileage you get will vary according to your driving habits, your car's condition, optional equipment and driving conditions. These estimates do, however, provide a useful comparison guide for new car models.

$15M for Cassiar highway

The provincial government will spend about $15 million this year to upgrade Highway 37 in northern B.C. between Stewart and the Yukon border, Highways Minister Alex Fraser said Wednesday.

Communities along the highway were in a virtual state of siege Tuesday because of a strike by local truckers who expressed concern over road conditions.

They returned to work Wednesday following meetings with their employer, Arrow Transport Ltd. Company officials say they recognize the need for safety and maintenance of trucks.

Replying to questions by Al Passarell (NDP — Atlin), Fraser said he met three months ago with Arrow Transport. "We gave some commitments on maintenance regarding Highway 37 and we're starting to carry those out."

Earlier he said the government had spent $80 million since 1976 on the 800-kilometre highway.

The 29 members of Local 31 of the Teamsters Union walked off the job Monday to express their concern over road conditions, complaining of heavy tourist traffic and thick dust.

Passarell said Tuesday pickets went up after three of the drivers were seriously injured along the 500-kilometre stretch between Stewart and Cassiar. No food or fuel was delivered to the communities north of Stewart.

Arrow Transport delivers fuel to Cassiar where it then picks up asbestos for delivery to the south.

He said the picket line was lifted because the truckers decided "they have no reason to affect the people of Cassiar."

"It was an unfortunate thing that it happened for those 12 hours. The people of Cassiar aren't involved. It's the highways minister and the truck drivers."

Peter Jones, the manager of the Cassiar Asbestos Mine, said shipments of food and fuel from Stewart to Cassiar were never disrupted.

He said there never was any danger of the mine being closed because production could be stockpiled.

Second opinion sought

Highways Minister Alex Fraser wants a second legal opinion on whether a preliminary layout plan for a subdivision on Denman Island was on stream when a community plan downgrading the zoning was approved in 1976.

"No subdivision approval has been granted," Fraser said Wednesday. "Preliminary approval is just that — they have all kind of things they have to live up to before they have a registered subdivision under the Land Registry Act."

A group of citizens from the island met with the minister to protest the development of 53 lots in an area currently zoned for 22 lots.

Fraser said the first legal opinion he received was that the project was on stream before the zoning regulations were changed and therefore not subject to the down-zoning.

The delegation "seemed quite happy as soon as I said I was getting a second legal opinion; that seemed to satisfy them," Fraser said.

BCAA wins pension plan suit

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Automobile Association was awarded $295,000 Tuesday in B.C. Supreme Court in an action against Manufacturers Life Insurance Co. which administered the pension plan covering the association's 142 employees.

The association had claimed negligence and breach of contract which it said caused it loss and damage in excess of $500,000.

Mr. Justice H. E. Hutcheon said the effect of two errors, contained in a presentation made in 1977 by Manufacturers employee Peter H. Pudney, misrepresented the annual contributions which would be required of the association.

He said that when Pudney discovered the mistake he did not inform the association but changed the method of funding the plan.

In awarding damages, Justice Hutcheon said this case differs from other cases of negligent mis-statement because the association still has a good pension plan.

"The erroneous advice did not affect the quality of the pension plan but it did lead to higher costs to the BCAA," he said.

Suit for libel

VANCOUVER (CP) — Margaret Young, returning officer for Vancouver Centre in the recent federal election, launched a damage action Wednesday against the Vancouver Courier newspaper for alleged libel.

Ms. Young, a lawyer, claims in a writ filed for her in British Columbia Supreme Court, that she was libelled in the May 29 issue of the Courier in an article that dealt with operations in the returning office on election night.

Warehouse burns

BURNABY (CP) — Fire in an industrial park Wednesday destroyed a warehouse and office building here.

Fire officials estimated the damage at $200,000 and said there was a threat of an explosion as two propane tanker trucks were damaged along with 10 propane tanks.

Climber killed

RADIUM (CP) — A man who died Monday in a climbing accident on Mount Assiniboine in eastern British Columbia was identified Wednesday by RCMP as Michael Gilles Pelletier, of Sechelt.

Police said Pelletier, an experienced climber, was descending the mountain with a companion when he lost his balance and fell.

Plots poisoned

PENTICTON (CP) — The provincial environment ministry's pesticide control branch is studying soil and plant samples taken from contaminated gardens and orchards in the West Bench area of the city.

The gardens were apparently contaminated last month after an aerial application of the herbicide Picloram to control knapweed on the nearby Penticton Indian reserve.

The branch has advised residents not to consume fruits and vegetables until results of the residue analysis are known later this week.

Estuary guarded

VANCOUVER (CP) — A moratorium is needed on housing, marina and other developments in the Fraser River estuary David Levy of Westwater Research Centre told the annual meeting of the Association for Canadian Studies.

Levy told delegates Tuesday that between 30 and 40 proposals for estuary developments are before authorities at a time when major enhancement projects for salmon are underway.

Levy asked that decisions be delayed for five to 10 years on projects which could possibly damage the fry and mature salmon which use the estuary as part of their life cycle.

Dailly calls Mair sexist after trap ban refused

DAILLY
. . . tired of remarks

Burnaby-North NDP MLA Eileen Dailly accused Environment Minister Rafe Mair of being sexist when he turned down her request Wednesday for a ban on the use of leg-hold traps for people who do not need them to earn a living.

Mair said in the legislature he sees little difference between an amateur trapper killing animals and professionals killing animals.

He also said he finds it tiresome "to listen to the bleatings of people who wear leather shoes and think they come from cows who died from old age, that continue to eat meat and take products of animals."

"Nothing would make me happier," Mair told Mrs. Dailly, "if those of your gender would stop wearing furs and stopped demanding the products of animals. And nothing would make me happier if you could find some way immediately to make up for the income of those native peoples primarily who depend on this industry."

Mrs. Dailly said Mair's reference to bleating was uncalled for and doubted he would have used the word with a male member of the legislature.

"He said I'm supposed to talk to my women friends about wearing fur when all we have to do is look around today and see how many males are covering themselves with furs," she said.

Mrs. Dailly said outside the house she is tired of listening to the "sexist remarks made by Mair for a number of years. Certainly it's a sexist remark when men also wear furs."

Mair said the remark was not intended in any way to be sexist.

Controversial family law may be tested - Gardom

The provincial government is considering testing the constitutionality of its controversial Family Relations Act Attorney-General Garde Gardom said Wednesday.

Replying to questions by Stu Leggatt (NDP—Coquitlam-Moody), Gardom said the law is being carried out in the province.

"There has been a challenge which was not argued in front of the court, and the matter is under consideration."

Leggatt noted that two judges now have refused to hear cases under the act, saying that some of its provisions are the prerogative of federal judges.

He urged the attorney-general to use the Constitutional Questions Determination Act to refer the act directly to the court of appeal "so that we can have a decision once and for all and settle the uncertainty in the law in this province."

Outside the house, Leggatt said the Family Relations Act is badly written because "they may have assigned it to the wrong court."

"It should have been a matter for the Supreme Court to deal with family law generally or county court because they have federally-appointed judges and there is less doubt about their jurisdiction."

Leggatt said he thinks the act is unconstitutional.

Winnifred Murphy, a retired family court judge in the Vancouver suburb of Richmond, said she adjourned several cases under the act after the disputed ruling on the act by Judge Phil Govan in the same court.

Judge Govan's ruling in April brought a complaint in the legislature last week that deputy attorney-general Richard Vogel tried to have the judge removed from the case.

Vogel denied the charge, saying that Judge Govan misinterpreted telephone calls made in connection with an application to the B.C. Supreme Court to compel the judge to hear the case.

UFAWU wants safety checks

The United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union has called on the Workers' Compensation Board to begin inspections of vessels used in the geoduck fishery.

UFAWU secretary-treasurer George Hewison said in a telegram to the board that poor conditions on the vessels contributed to two deaths in May.

He said geoduck fishermen are negligent in regard to their divers, who he said are often hired without any medical records or proof of competence.

"The conditions aboard most of these vessels are appalling," he said. "Unless the WCB begins inspections there could be more deaths this season."

Hewison said the deaths of divers Wayne Mills and Ivan Simon in separate incidents could have been avoided if the geoduck fishing vessels had undergone safety inspections.

Mills, 27, of Victoria died May 16 south of St. James Island in the Queen Charlottes and Simon, 26, of Quadra Island died near Quadra May 31, Hewison said.

Board spokesman Grant McMillan said the board has not inspected geoduck fishing vessels in the past because their operations come under the jurisdiction of the federal fisheries department.

He said, however, that the board is concerned about the situation and will study Hewison's request.

WIN! GRAND PRIZE TRIP FOR TWO TO HAWAII, By Wardair

The object is to match the official letters published every day with the letters in the grid which you have filled in with your name (see samples 1 and 2). When you have circled a row of letters across, vertically, or diagonally either way, send your entry in for the bi-weekly draw for cash prizes. You may submit as many entries as you wish per game, but each must be in a separate envelope.

LETTERS FOR TODAY, GAME NO. 2 ONLY

I F P

IMPORTANT!

THE NAME GAME
Rules and Procedures

Object of "The Name Game": To become eligible for prize drawings by matching letters of the alphabet, published in the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist, with the letters in your name. Each game starts with a Saturday Times and ends in the Sunday Colonist two weeks later. The official entry form will be published every day. All members of a family may play. There is no age limit. You may enter more than once but only one entry per envelope may be submitted. As each game ends, you are invited to play the next game.

1. Using the official entry form or a reasonably hand-drawn facsimile (no mechanically reproduced forms accepted), start at the upper left hand corner and print your name continuously, one letter in each square, until all the squares are filled in. (For example, if your name is John Anderson, Sample 1 shows how to fill out your entry form.) Do not include punctuation.
Use your legal name, in a form which can be verified on your driver's licence, social security card or other official identification. You may use various forms of your first name (e.g. John, Jonathan or John S.), as long as your identity can be verified. No nicknames, please.
2. Letters for the Name Game will be published as follows: 4 letters Saturday and Sunday and 3 letters daily. When an official letter matches one in your diagram, circle it on your entry. That letter may appear in more than one square on your diagram, but you may circle only one such letter (of your choice) each time. Since individual letters are selected at random, they may appear more than once — even on the same day. You may circle one such letter as many times as that letter is published. The same letters will be published in the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist but may only be used once in any one entry.
3. When you match enough letters to complete one row on your diagram — horizontal, vertical or diagonal (corner to corner), as in Sample 2, you are eligible for the prize drawings for that game. Drawings for 15 prizes will be held every other week for 10 weeks. At each drawing $500 goes to the first name drawn, $100 to the next —, $50 each to the next 3, and $25 for the last 10 — (Winners must answer a time-limited skill-testing question before collecting prizes.) All names drawn will be returned to the drum for the grand prize drawing.
4. Mail your completed entry form to: The Name Game, Victoria Press, P.O. Box 1390, Victoria, B.C. V8W 3C4; postmarked no later than the Monday following the end of that game. Completed entries may also be delivered, in a sealed envelope, to Victoria Press, no later than Tuesday, the following day. The game number (such as 'Game 1', 'Game 2', etc.) must appear at the lower left-hand corner of the envelope.
5. All entries will be placed in a container and the winning entries will be drawn at random. Winners will be announced in the Colonist and Times on the Friday following the close of each game. The odds of winning will depend on the number of eligible entries received.
6. It is not necessary to buy the Times or Colonist to participate. Copies of the newspaper may be inspected free of charge at the newspaper's offices during regular business hours. Sorry, official letters will not be given over the phone.
7. Employees of the newspapers and members of their immediate families are not eligible to participate. Unclaimed or invalidly claimed prizes will be donated to a recognized charity at the close of the contest.
8. Winners agree to allow publication of their names, pictures and publicity in the Times and Colonist without additional consideration. Submission of an entry indicates acceptance of all game rules.
9. Decisions of Victoria Press judges in all matters relating to the The Name Game will be final.

West should launch own education Anik: McGeer

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

Education-of-the air may be given a new meaning if a long-term project involving satellites comes to fruition.

In an interview Wednesday, Education and Science Minister Pat McGeer said there is sufficient demand for additional educational services in remote areas that the four Western provinces could afford to put their own Canadian-built Anik satellite into space to beam back educational programs.

But he is deadly serious about a 32-channel educational satellite for exclusive use by the Western provinces.

Cost of building and launching an Anik is about $50 million.

McGeer says there are available channels on Aniks currently in space, but the rent of $2 million per channel is prohibitive.

He feels the four provincial education ministries would have enough reserve space on their own satellite that they could rent out extra channels to help offset the cost.

That one satellite could eliminate the microwave dishes that perch atop practically every mountain in B.C., he said.

Channels could be rented to CBC and BCTV television, B.C. Rail, B.C. Hydro and B.C. Tel.

Instead of being shunted from mountain to mountain, electronic waves would be beamed to space and back in one movement, the minister said.

It would end the hassle of servicing the microwave system and the network of roads winding up the mountains to each station.

This fall, the B.C. Institute of Technology will send programs into five regional colleges via satellite on an experimental basis.

But McGeer foresees a much broader use of satellite education.

The next step, he said, is to set up meetings with the other three Western education ministers to see what kind of interest they have in the project.

"It's still a long way off," he admits.

MPs' aid sought on dump

The Capital Regional District decided Wednesday to solicit the help of local MPs in a bid to build a septic tank dumping station at Macaulay Point.

Regional board chairman Murray Glazier, along with directors Dave Hill, Howard Sturrock and Charles Perkins, will meet Defence Minister Allan McKinnon, Donald Munro, MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, and Don Taylor, MP for Cowichan-Malahat-The Islands.

The regional district is faced with finding an alternative to the Millstream Road dumping site because the Pollution Control Board will not allow dumping in the Millstream lagoon to continue indefinitely.

The district hopes Crown land will be made available near the Macaulay Point outfall in Esquimalt.

At one point the district had considered buying a site near the new Helmcken Road hospital but View Royal residents turned out en masse at a public hearing to oppose it.

Holocaust returns

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC will rebroadcast Holocaust, the television drama focusing on the Nazi atrocities during the Second World War, over four nights Sept. 10-13, the network says.

Sewage line fear

A string of sewage lines jutting into Juan de Fuca Strait from Victoria to Sooke is a danger unless the provincial government develops a firm pollution policy, Esquimalt-Port Renfrew NDP MLA Frank Mitchell warned Wednesday.

During debate on Environment Minister Rafe Mair's estimates, Mitchell said several private groups are using the precedent set by the Esquimalt Lagoon sewage outfall to apply for their own lines into the sea.

He called on Mair to draft a firm policy on sewage treatment before dozens of such lines dot the southern coast of the Island.

The cabinet late last year overruled a Pollution Control Board decision not to allow an outfall into the strait to serve the sewage-plagued Esquimalt Lagoon subdivision.

Now two other groups — a religious retreat in Pedder Bay and a trailer park at Otter Point — are using the lagoon outfall as a precedent to apply for sewage outfalls of their own.

Mitchell said he is not opposed to the Esquimalt Lagoon decision because of the problems there and because of the restrictions placed by cabinet in granting the approval.

But he fears others will build lines of inferior quality which will break up in the swift tidal action and end up dumping raw sewage on the shore.

Mitchell said other groups know the cabinet can overrule the board and will pressure the government for outfalls unless there is a clear policy.

Mair said the long-term goal of the ministry is to end the dumping of all sewage into water courses.

But the problem is much more serious in the interior lakes and streams and must be addressed first.

Before the Judge

A 25-year-old Penticton man was given a total of 90 days in jail after pleading guilty in provincial court Wednesday to dangerous driving, hit and run, and driving while under suspension.

Duty legal aid counsel Barry Mah Ming entered a guilty plea to the lesser-included offence of dangerous driving and Crown counsel Don Laughton withdrew the impaired driving charge.

Judge Fred Green was told the incident occurred about 7:30 p.m. last Saturday when Huntley's vehicle illegally passed a truck on the right in the 3200-block Quadra and sideswiped it, causing about $100 damage.

A Saanich policemen saw the incident and began to chase Huntley's vehicle, which reached speeds of 100 km/h in a 50 km/h zone.

At one point, Laughton said, police pulled alongside Huntley's vehicle and over a loudhailer ordered him to pull over. Huntley reportedly made an obscene gesture and yelled an obscenity at the officer and continued his escape bid. He was finally stopped by a roadblock set up at McKenzie and Blenkinsop where he struggled with officers before being placed in a police car.

At the police station Huntley broke a table in an interview room before being restrained. At that point, he passed out and police were unable to give him a breath test.

Huntley had two previous convictions for dangerous driving and three for driving while under suspension, the last two on March 13 last year when he was given concurrent 30-day jail terms.

Mah Ming said Huntley was in Victoria to attend his brother's wedding. He said Huntley's employer in Penticton was in the car during the entire incident.

Green imposed 30-day sentences on each charge but made each term consecutive. He said he would recommend the sentence be served at the Kamloops Regional Correction Centre nearer Huntley's home.

James Oliver Landen, 35, of no fixed address, entered the plea after being denied a bail application on a charge of causing a disturbance by fighting.

Laughton said Landen was walking along the 600-block Johnson about 2:30 p.m. when he suddenly accosted the man who had never seen Landen before. The victim received minor injuries before police arrived and arrested Landen.

Laughton said Landen was convicted June 15 this year of obtaining food by fraud and was given a suspended sentence and placed on 12 months probation.

"He gives the appearance of being on a bender," Green observed before passing sentence.

Hogg gave Galbraith a seven-day sentence to be served on weekends.

Employers meeting with CUPE

Mediator Clark Gilmour has scheduled meetings today and Friday between the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association (GVLRA) and five locals of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE).

The locals rejected municipal wage offers and the meetings are another attempt to bring about a settlement.

GVLRA is representing Greater Victoria School District and the core municipalities. The CUPE locals are bargaining together as the Joint Negotiating Committee.

Within the last two weeks the locals turned down GVLRA's proposed two-year offer which included wage increases of 7.25 per cent both years.

The negotiating committee asked for 17 per cent over one year to catch up with inflation losses and projected cost-of-living increases this year.

Significant losses were suffered during the wage and price control period, the committee says.

Victoria outside workers, Saanich and Esquimalt municipal employees and inside and outside school board workers are represented by the locals.

The big Saanich local includes employees from Oak Bay, North Saanich and Sidney.

The GVLRA package has been accepted by three locals representing Victoria inside employees, public library and Capital Region District staff.

Few lottery tickets unsold

Did you ever wonder what happens to all those unsold lottery tickets once the winning numbers are drawn?

Or do you believe, after having tried unsuccessfully to buy an Express ticket at 15 stores the day of a draw, that there are no unsold tickets?

In fact, there are very few unsold tickets, according to B.C. Lotteries Branch head Jim Taylor.

And unsold tickets held by the branch are returned to the main Victoria branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce by 11 a.m. on the day of any draw.

After the draw, all unsold tickets in western Canada are returned to local Bank of Commercebranches and they in turn send them to the main Winnipeg branch for destruction.

Taylor said the system was instituted collectively by the four western provinces to maintain the integrity of the lottery.

The thought that winning numbers could be among the unsold tickets bothers some lottery ticket buyers, which is why lottery officials have put a 10 per cent ceiling on ticket returns.

Potentially, [illegible] of the 2.5 million tickets printed could be returned, but officials added a rider to the 10 per cent rule, allowing only a 5 per cent average return over any three-month period.

In practice, however, the rule doesn't have to be enforced. Taylor pointed out that in a recent draw, the number of returned tickets in B.C. amounted to only 1.2 per cent of the total number of tickets printed.

The percentage ceilings are an encouragement to dealers to order only as many tickets they are confident they can sell.

If a dealer consistently orders too many tickets, then he or she would be forced to buy excess tickets over and above the return of 10 per cent.

The B.C. Lotteries Branch is part of the Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis' ministry and is an equal partner with the other three western provinces in the Western Canada Lottery Foundation, headquartered in Winnipeg.

her home as a sparkle of lights silently passed overhead. A minute later, she heard a sonic boom.

The Australian government said there were no reports of injury or damage as the space station rained hundreds of fragments over western Australia.

U.S. officials estimated 20 to 25 tons of metal survived Skylab's disintegration when it plunged into the earth's atmosphere.

The North American Space Command said the impact point of the heaviest pieces of the fallen spacecraft was in the vicinity of Kalgoorlie, a southwestern Australia city with a population of 20,000.

Residents of Esperance, Perth and Kalgoorie began seaching for debris and around the world, people offered rewards for a genuine chunk of the space station.

Australians chartered planes and piled into Jeeps and Land Rovers to search for the space debris.

But the U.S. consulate in Perth was swamped today by telephone calls from angry people.

"I think it stinks that they delayed the descent for 18 minutes so it missed them and hit us," said one housewife in a call to a Perth newspaper. "I don't think our so-called American allies like us very much."

Another woman was enraged by the remark of a space program official in Washington that Australia would be a good place for the space craft to come down because "there are only kangaroos there."

"It was a stupid remark," said the consulate's public relations officer, Chuck McGinley.

The crew and 55 passengers of an Australian airliner watched the disintegration, the pilot reported.

Captain Bill Anderson said he was about 200 kilometres north-northeast of Perth when his first officer saw a bright blue light through the left window of the cockpit.

"It was like an enormous aircraft with headlights and all interior lights on coming at us. Pieces started to tear away. There was a spark effect forming a tail to the body.

"It was a fantastic sight. It had terrific brilliance. I have seen shooting stars and comets before but this was the jackpot."

Red tape halts $63M projects on Wharf Street. Mayhew said objections raised over the design of the building, particularly its height and the fact it would cast a shadow on a park planned for the area has caused unnecesssary delays. The loss — $5 million.

—The proposed Mini-World tourist attraction on the grounds of St. Anne's Academy. Mayhew said the British developer has temporarily shelved his plan because of government opposition to using the site. The loss — $5 million.

Mayhew said he is not suggesting developers should receive carte blanche treatment but said the seven proposals are all worthwhile and should be acted upon without undue delay.

He said with unemployment in the construction industry hovering at the 35 per cent mark, there has to be more give-and-take in allowing developments to go ahead.

"To have a healthy construction industry you have to have capital investment, labor skills and the mechanism to approve the proposals," he said.

"We have the first two in abundance. But the third ingredient is missing.

Can't head off oilport at Pt. Angeles: Munro

Esquimalt-Saanich Conservative MP Donald Munro is opposed to the proposed oil supertanker port at Port Angeles but feels Canadians have little chance of stopping it if the U.S. decides to go ahead.

In a paper sent to Murray Glazier, chairman of the Capital Regional District which is holding an oilport hearing Friday, Munro says much of the oil to be delivered to any superport in the northwest U.S. will be of U.S. origin and the ships delivering it will be able to ply U.S. waters exclusively.

He said the U.S. can do what it wants in its own waters and disregard what Canadians think unless it can be proven that the damage an oil spill will bring to Canadian shorelines and fisheries will be repeated on U.S. shores.

Munro, stressing it is his personal view and not his government's, says he favors the alternative of branching oil off the Alyeska Pipeline in Alaska at the point where the Prudhoe gasline turns east toward the Yukon.

It would follow an overland route for oil, parallel the Northern Gas Pipeline to a point in Alberta where Prudhoe oil could be fed into existing pipelines and reach the markets the Norther Tier route is seeking.

Don Taylor, Conservative MP for Cowichan-Malahat-The Islands, will be among the politicians attending the board's hearing opening Friday at 9 a.m. at 824 Yates.

Residents concerned about traffic hazards on Torquay Road have convinced Saanich council's public works committee to close part of the street.

The committee approved a plan to close one block near Lambrick Park school. Under the plan the southern access to the school parking lot would be blocked and the northern access kept open.

Torquay residents presented a petition to council asking for partial closure because of the high accident rate in the area. Torquay connects with Shelbourne and Kenmore, which are high traffic volume streets.

Joane Moore, a spokesman for the residents, said they want the area closed before school starts.

During a survey by municipal engineers a majority of Torquay motorists said they wouldn't mind using another route.

Barriers will be erected and only fire trucks will be allowed emergency access to that part of the street.

Couvelier scores on shopping centre

Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier scored a victory Wednesday when the Capital Regional Board agreed to allow his municipality to go ahead with a controversial shopping centre although it contravenes the regional plan.

The board decided to drop legal action and allow the Tillicum development up to 240,000 square feet of department store merchandising.

It did not set a limit on over-all development which could include such facilities as restaurants, food stores and gas stations but Couvelier said Saanich has a covenant with the developer limiting the development to 295,000 square feet.

The board also decided to amend its regional plan to give the district some clout when it comes to regulating size and locations of regional shopping centres. The amendments will be dealt with at a meeting July 25.

Couvelier also persuaded the board that interfering with Broadmead Farms Ltd.'s understanding with Saanich could lead to legal action by Broadmead against Saanich.

Victoria director Bob Wright, however, said he doubted such legal action could stick because Saanich, according to Couvelier, has had only an "unwritten understanding" with Broadmead over the past 10 years.

New rescue boat saves two gust-stricken sailors

Two Saanich men spent 45 minutes in the water off Ten-Mile Point Wednesday night after their 31-foot ketch broached and sank to the waterline.

Kim Reinholdt, 20, of 1696 Kisber, and Chris Mills, 20, of 120 Gair, were rescued by Saanich firemen Trevor Hughes and Ed Bradford using the department's newly-acquired 16-foot Zodiac rescue boat.

Hughes said Reinholdt and Mills were taking the boat from Sidney to Cadboro Bay and had just lifted a large centre board in the vessel when a gust hit them.

The sailboat tipped over on its side, filled with water and then, partially submerged, righted itself.

The men clung to the masts as a crowd of onlookers stood on shore about 500 metres away.

The incident occurred shortly before 7 p.m.

The firemen towed the boat into Smuggler's Cove where the owners were expected to bail out the water and complete their trip later today.

It was the third time the Zodiac has been used in rescues since the fire department got it two months ago.

The other two incidents were at Elk Lake and off Cordova Bay.

FOOD & nutrition

NUTRITION MATTERS
Dr. Elizabeth Bright-See and Jane Hope

We've been hearing a lot of warnings that our bland Canadian diet doesn't contain enough fibre. Lack of dietary fibre is a contributing factor in a number of diseases — particularly those affecting the digestive system.

So, exactly what is fibre? What part does it play in our digestive functions? and how can we get more of it into our daily diets?

Our grandparents usually referred to fibre as roughage — and that's not a bad description. Or, perhaps we should call it smoothage as it really helps our intestines work smoothly. In actual fact, fibre is simply an undigestible carbohydrate that give form to our food. It's plant material which is not used by the body directly as a nutrient.

If it's not digestible, how can fibre be so important to our health? Since fibre isn't broken down by chopping, crushing or cooking, it stays in our digestive tract and absorbs water after all other substances have been absorbed. This spongelike action has a laxative effect, helping to cleanse out systems, relieve constipation and regulate elimination.

Fibre has also been called nature's broom because of the way it cleans out our digestive tract. It's also been called the forgotton nutrient because little attention has been paid to its useful function.

Our ancestors ate a good deal of bran, the outer coating of wheat grains, which is an excellent source of fibre. However, over the last 50 years or so, our consumption of high-fibre foods such as whole grains, fruits and vegetables has declined. Instead, we are eating more refined foods — and the effects are noticeable in our over-all health.

Recent research continues to indicate that a diet low in fibre can lead to various problems. Dr. Denis Burkitt, a leading researcher on fibre, has related a low-fibre diet to such ailments as cancer of the colon, appendicitis, diverticulitis, constipation and heart disease. A few years ago, diverticulitis, where walls of the intestine become inflamed and develop holes, creating a dangerous situation, was treated by surgery and a low-fibre diet. Now, a high fibre diet is proving more effective — a dramatic reversal.

Dr. Burkitt's studies of primitive African tribes, whose diet is high in fibre, show very little incidence of these diseases. Blood cholesterol levels are lower in primitive societies, too — perhaps another benefit of fibre in their diets. And diabetes — even varicose veins — are almost non-existent.

Although an exact correlation between lack of fibre and prevalent health problems has not yet been mapped out, our present-day Canadian diet is highly suspect.

Don't think you have to make radical changes in your diet — or give up your favorite foods — just to get the fibre content you need for good digestive functioning. Whole grains, fresh fruits and vegetables, dried peas, dried beans, figs, dates, nuts and seeds are all good sources of fibre — and they're all delicious.

You're probably not familiar with other types of fibre like pectin from apples and citrus fruits that's used to make jams and jellies and methyl cellulose which is added to low-calorie products. Fibre supplements such as bran tablets are coming into the marketplace. Each little tablet contains ¼ gram of fibre. It's generally recommended that we each about 15-20 grams of fibre each day so you'd have to gulp about 80 of these pills daily to get the recommended amount. It's easier — and cheaper — to eat a slice or two of whole wheat bread and munch an apple.

— Include a wide variety of vegetables and fruits with edible skins and seeds in all your meals;

— Eat whole fruit rather than drinking juices. Use fruit instead of sugar to sweeten cereals;

— Sprinkle natural wheat bran or a bran cereal on other cold or cooked cereals, add it to the things you bake, or use it as a casserole topping;

— Use wholewheat flour when you bake and be sure not to sift the flour, as this removes the bran. Although your baking won't be quite as light and fluffy, you'll find that many of your recipes will taste extra good;

— When you buy bread, insist on "100 per cent wholewheat" and rediscover bread in general — there's fibre in white breads as well.

Sure-fire winner for picnic tables

For a lavish touch to a summer picnic or garden supper, a turkey roasted and carved the day before will add just the right touch. Accompanied by family favorite salads, fresh fruit and cookies, the feast is sure to please.

Roast the turkey, unstuffed, then cool and refrigerate. The turkey will cook in ½ to ¾ hour less time when unstuffed and is more suitable for cold service. The day before, or the day of the picnic, carve the turkey. Using a very sharp knife, make vertical slices perpendicular to the breast bone, rather than the traditional way. Don't carve the drumsticks since they are better as a finger food.

Refrigerate until ready to serve. To take to the picnic, place the whole carved turkey in a portable cooler with plenty of ice. Try to plan the food so that there is none left to worry about keeping cool on the way home.

Remember that extra care must be taken in summer when handling food. Food must be kept hot or cold — not warm. If carrying a cooler any distance, cover with several thicknesses of newspapers or a blanket and keep out of the sun.

A cool jellied salad, potato salad, crusty rolls, fresh fruit and jumbo frosted cookies will complee the feast.

Just add salad, fruit and cookies

Rinsing might erase nutrients

Q: Why is it that the labels of some brands of rice include an instruction not to rinse the rice before cooking or to drain it after cooking while others do not? Is there a difference between the products or does this direction really apply to all rice?

A: There is a difference. Where that direction appears, it means that the highly-refined rice has been enriched by a process in which the kernels are coated with a mixture of nutrients, including thiamin, niacin and iron. Thus, this mixture is not rinse resistant.

Converted rice is produced in such a way that most of the nutrients present in the whole grain are forced into the kernel. As a result, it may contain anywhere from 70 to 90 per cent of the water-soluble vitamins in the rough rice. But converted rice, too, may be enriched with additional B vitamins and iron and thus it is important to check the package directions for washing and rinsing instructions.

Q: Recently I sent my daughter to the market to buy fish. She came home with something called rose fish. While I did bake it successfully, I wasn't sure how else I could cook it. Since it was relatively inexpensive and the family enjoyed it, I'd like to know more about how to handle it. I'd also like to know something about its nutritional vlaue.

A: Rose fish is another name for red perch, a particularly good variety of ocean perch. Because it has a firm texture and delicate flavor, it lends itself to a variety of cooking methods and seasonings. The fillets can be baked in a number of different sauces, including such things as curried yogurt, teriyaki (a mixture of soy, ginger, sherry and onion), or in white wine and tomato seasoned with basil or oregano.

If you wish, the fillets may be spread with a mixture of lightly-cooked vegetables, such as mushrooms, green pepper and onion, and rolled before baking. They can also be sauteed in a small amount of oil or cut into smaller pieces and stir-fried Chinese style with a variety of vegetables, and they can be broiled. But because they are quite low in fat, it is necessary to brush them lightly with a little oil before cooking.

Q: Since my husband has been laid off from work he has taken over the food shopping. Because of our obviously difficult economic situation, he tries to make every penny count and often buys dented cans at bargain prices. I'm terribly concerned that this may be a dangerous practice and would like your advice.

A: Today's metal containers bear little resemblance to the sturdy tin can of yesteryear. As any supermarket shopper can testify, most food cans will dent rather easily. Fortunately, small dents normally do not affect the product. And buying damaged cans at reduced prices can help economically stressed consumers save some money.

But be cautious. If you do buy dented cans, examine each one very carefully. Avoid any cans which are severely damaged. Check the seams to make sure the seal has not been broken. Make sure there are no rust spots, which may be symptomatic of small leaks through which harmful bacteria can invade. And, finally, be sure to check for any signs of swelling or bulges, especially at the top or bottom, an indication that bacteria may be producing a deadly toxin.

Herbs add zest to home canning

If fresh herbs are growing in your garden, take full advantage of their flavor and fragrance by using them in home canning.

Though canning can change the flavor and strength of some spices, this is not the case with herbs. Oil content determines the flavor of herbs and spices and since herbs are low in oil, they can be used in canning as in normal kitchen cooking.

Try adding a few sprigs of mint to peas for an intriguing accent. And home canned peas and carrots take on new sparkle with a tablespoon of snipped chives.

Remember that in canning these vegetables, a pressure canner must be used and this requires more care than does a water bath canner.

Still, peas and carrots, whether fresh picked from your garden, or bought when they're at their peak for canning, are tasty wholsome vegetables.

PEAS AND CARROTS WITH CHIVES

Carrots (about 1 pound per pint jar)
Fresh chives
canning salt

Visually examine home canning jars for nicks, cracks and sharp edges on sealing surface. Wash and rinse jars, bands and lids.

Keep jars in hot water or warm cycle of dishwasher until ready to fill.

Place bands and lids in a small sauce pan, cover with water and bring to a simmer. Do not boil. Remove from heat but leave bands and lids in hot water until needed.

Wash and scrape carrots then wash again. Cut carrots into ½ inch coins.

Combine peas and carrots in a saucepan, cover with boiling water and boil 5 minutes. Carefully drain and place hot vegetables in hot jars, leaving 1 inch head space. Add ½ teaspoon salt to each pint jar.

Place 1 tablespoon snipped chives in each pint jar. Carefully add boiling water or cooking liquid to vegetables, leaving 1 inch head space.

Place lid on jar with sealing compound next to jar, and screw band down evenly and firmly.

Process pints in a pressure canner 40 minutes at 10 pounds pressure.

PEAS WITH MINT

Fresh peas (about 3 or 4 pounds per quart jar)
Fresh mint
Canning salt

Wash and rinse jars, bands and lids. Keep jars in hot water or warm cycle of dishwasher until ready to fill. Place bands and lids in a small saucepan, cover with water and bring to a simmer. Do not boil. Remove from heat but leave bands and lids in hot water until needed.

Boil small peas 3 minutes; larger ones 5 minutes. Carefully drain and place hot peas in hot jars, leaving 1 inch head space. Add 1 teaspoon canning salt to each quart jar.

Place 3 sprigs of mint (about 1½ inch sprigs) in eachjar. Carefully add boiling water to peas, leaving 1 inch head space.

Place lid on jar with sealing compound next to jar, and screw band down evenly and firmly.

Process quarts in a pressure canner 40 minutes at 10 pounds pressure. If peas are large, process 10 minutes longer.

Mix those drinks for taste treats

By PEGGY KATALINICH
Newsday

The drink: it's most likely Coca-Cola, maybe Pepsi or 7-Up, providing sugar, coloring and not much more.

Hot-weather coolers, however, can serve up vitamins A and C if you start with natural fruits and juices and take off from there. The combinations are limited only by your imagination: Strawberries team well with orange juice. Melons, blended to a soft froth, are particularly well suited to pineapple or apple juice.

Armed only with a blender — the food processor isn't as successful, because it leaves bits of fruit — you can whip up these refreshing beverages in seconds.

CANTALOUPE PINEAPPLE APPLE DRINK

1 cup cubed cantaloupe, (about ½ a melon)
1 cup pineapple juice
1 lime
Mint leaves

Blend cantaloupe and pineapple juice in blender or juicer until smooth. Add juice of 1 lime and blend again briefly. Pour over ice in tall glasses and garnish with mint. Makes 2 servings.

In The Tomato Book, author Yvonne Young Tarr suggests serving the traditional Bloody Mary with a fresh clam or oyster slipped into each glass. She also offers this twist on tomato juice that provides 125 percent of the recommended daily allowance for vitamin C and 120 calories per serving:

MINTED TOMORANGEADE

2 cups tomato juice
¼ cup sugar
½ cup fresh mint leaves or 2 to 3 teaspoons dried
2 cups orange juice
½ cup lime juice

In a medium-sized saucepan, bring tomato juice to a boil; add sugar and mint leaves. Remove from heat and let mixture cool. Stir in orange and lime juices. To serve, pour over ice and garnish with lime slices. Makes 1 quart.

CARROT ORANGEADE

2 cups orange juice
2 medium carrots, peeled and sliced
Juice of ½ lemon
1 tablespoon honey
1 cup crushed ice
1 orange

In blender or juicer, blend orange juice, carrots, lemon juice and honey until smooth. Add ice and blend again briefly. Pour into tall glasses and garnish with sliced orange. Makes 4 servings.

FRUIT MEDLEY PUNCH

½ cup sugar
Pinch salt
2 cups water
1 large ripe banana, peeled and cut in chunks
½ cup orange juice
¼ cup lemon juice
1 (12-ounce) can apricot nectar
½ cup each nonfat dry milk and water

Blend sugar, salt and 2 cups water in a saucepan. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer 2 minutes. Cool and chill. Put mixture in a blender or food processor along with banana and orange juice and blend until smooth. Add lemon juice and nectar and blend again. Mix milk and remaining water and chill. Before serving, combine both mixtures and stir well. Makes 1½ quarts.

SANGRITA

3 cups tomato juice
1 cup orange juice
½ cup lime juice
½ small white onion, chopped
1 teaspoon each sugar and salt
2 teaspoons seeded and chopped fresh hot green or red pepper or 1 teaspoon caynne pepper
White tequila, limes, salt

Combine tomato, orange and lime juices, onion, sugar, salt and hot pepper or cayenne in a blender and blend until smooth. Strain into a jug and chill thoroughly. Serve in small straight-sided 1½ to 2-ounce tequila glasses along with lime, salt and a glass of tequila. Makes 18 to 24 servings.

DEWEY VODKA

1 small honeydew melon
1 cup each apple juice and vodka
¼ cup sugar
6 sprigs of fresh mint
2 cups crushed ice

Scoop the flesh from the melon and mash it to a pulp. Measure 2 cups. In a saucepan, put the mashed melon, apple juice and sugar (for a sweeter drink, use half a cup sugar). Bring to a boil, simmer 5 minutes, stirring frequently. Cover and refrigerate until ready to use. Place melon syrup in a blender with the vodka, mint leaves and crushed ice. Cover and blend at high speed for 40 seconds. Serve in tall stemmed glasses. Makes about 4 cups, 6 to 8 aperitif servings.

RUM 'n SHERBET

1 scoop orange sherbert (about ⅓ cup)
1 ounce rum
Club soda

Blend sherbet with rum until smooth. Pour into a stemmed glass and top with club soda. Garnish with fruit. Makes 1 serving.

And a spot of vitamins A and C as a bonus

Dear Abby

by Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have been miserable and depressed for the last seven months — ever since my only brother wrote me out of his life.

The reason is still unbelievable. After eight years of marriage and no children, my husband and I adopted a beautiful baby girl. My brother and his wife were her godparents and seemed so happy for us.

A few months later my brother told my husband that he wanted nothing more to do with us because our baby is of a different heritage than ours. She is Mexican. We are of Swedish and Irish descent.

I could not believe it, so I phoned my brother. He hung up on me as soon as he heard my voice.

Abby, he is my only brother and we were so close. We were not raised with hate and prejudice. I cannot imagine what has come over him. In years to come, how do I explain to my child that the only aunt and uncle she has don't want to know her — or us?

My husband and I do not speak of this. I want so desperately to talk to my brother and resume friendly relations with him. What can I do to change his outlook? — BROKENHEARTED SISTER

DEAR SISTER: Your brother and his wife have shown themselves to be despicable characters, unworthy of your friendship. (Maybe they've both flipped their lids.) In any case, judging from their behavior toward you, and particularly their reason for it, I advise you to let him know that if he should ever recover from his "sickness" to let you know. In the meantime, write him off — and good riddance.

DEAR ABBY: Why is it that people who don't work always choose the lunch hour to do their shopping?

Our town is not very large. The noon-hour congestion around the few shopping places we have is absolutely unreal!

We working people must shop on our lunch hour. Parking places at that time are almost impossible to find. When we do get into the stores, we find them crowded with little old ladies and non-working mothers with small kids.

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: You have a legitimate gripe. And may I suggest that those who can do their banking at another time please do so?

Loss of hair due to rollers

My daughter uses brush rollers to set her hair. I noticed recently that she seems to have less and less hair. Do you think it could be because of the rough rollers she uses? — Mrs. I. F. T.

Dear. Mrs. T.:

An excellent book, published by the American Medical Association, titled Skin and Hair Care, takes up this specific problem.

It is felt that any type of hair roller that is used to vigorously can cause temporary loss of hair. If the roller is pulled too tightly at the scalp, a condition known as "traction alopecia" (loss of hair) results. To avoid such traction, the suggestion is made to wind the hair tightly around the roller, but making sure that the hair between the roller and the scalp is loose. This same precaution should be used with plastic or metal rollers, too. Yet the brush rollers seem to be the most likely ones to cause this type of hair breakage.

The book mentions that "foam rubber rollers are less likely to cause hair loss because they don't pull the hair from the scalp as tightly as others."

They add that there is no evidence that metal clips or plastic clips cause hair loss or breakage under normal use. If bobby pins are used to keep rollers in place, they should be rubber-tipped.

If you feel that your daughter has an unusual loss of hair I suggest that she consult a dermatologist (skin specialist) in order to rule out any other reason for the problem besides the overactive use of rollers.

Directive ignored by RCMP

OTTAWA (CP) — The government announced 10 years ago that the RCMP security service would become more civilian but the reverse was true until last year, a royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing disclosed Wednesday.

The disclosure came after former RCMP commissioner Maurice Nadon, who ran the force from 1974 to 1977, indicated that the "civilianization" policy announced by the Trudeau government in 1969 had been implemented.

Mr. Justice David C. McDonald, the commission chairman, said the number of civilians in the security service increased by only 2.5 per cent between 1968-69 and 1977-78.

Above that level, McDonald said, civilians with the equivalent of officer rank fell to zero from 8.7 per cent in 1968-69, those at the senior non-commissioner officer level fell to .4 from 5.4 per cent, and those at junior NCO levels to 1.9 from 6.8 per cent.

At the most junior level — constable or lower — the number of civilians increased to 25.9 per cent from 14.1.

McDonald noted that former Prime Minister Trudeau in 1976 ordered that the service be given divisional status, an order which took effect a year later and has resulted in more civilians being hired by the security service.

The Trudeau policy was that the service should become increasingly separate in structure from the RCMP and civilian in nature. A royal commission had recommended that the service be separated from the RCMP altogether, but the government balked at going that far.

McDonald said the fact was that "whether by intent or happenstance" the real civilian content of the security service had declined until after 1978.

He asked Nadon whether he could still say the policy had been implemented.

"According to these statistics, it wasn't," Nadon said. He added that as commissioner he had had other priorities, chief among them fending off a movement in 1974 by the Mounties to form a union-like association.

Nadon also said that he had delayed giving the security service more autonomy because 100 men would have been needed to do the administrative work and the force didn't have the budget or the manpower to spare.

The security service finally drew the administrative strength from its own ranks — its manpower has never been made public officially — and now recruited its own men.

Nadon said the policy drew some opposition from RCMP divisional commanders, who until it was announced had control of security service men within their divisions.

Iraqi non-boycott has Ottawa puzzled

OTTAWA (CP) — The external affairs department and an international oil company are seeking clarification of an apparent oil boycott that officially never was.

Or to put it more clearly, the department and Petrofina Canada Ltd. of Montreal want to know whether an Iraqi government-owned agency has instituted an embargo without direction from its government.

If so why?

The unusual situation is this:

Earlier this month a ship loaded with Iraqi oil destined for Petrofina was halted in mid-ocean as it headed for Portland, Me., at the head of a pipeline to Montreal.

Informed of the situation, external affairs officials asked Iraqis why. They were told the Iraqi government had no objection to the ship discharging and subsequently it proceded to port.

But, external wanted to know, is there a boycott? They were told that there is no Iraqi government policy to interrupt supplies to Canada — about 10,000 barrels a day or two per cent of Canadian imports.

But, if that is the case, external and Petrofina ask, why was the ship halted and will it happen again? As yet they have no answers.

An external spokesman said this week the department is seeking to resolve the matter by getting word to the Iraqi marketing agency.

If there is or was an unofficial boycott it presumably is a result of the Conservative government's plans to eventually move the Canadian embassy in Israel to Jerusalem from Tel Aviv.

Secrets Act reform?

OTTAWA (CP) — A royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing is preparing a report that may help clear the legislative way for a freedom of information bill, it was learned Wednesday.

Informed sources said the report will deal with reform of the Official Secrets Act, which will have to be amended if announced government plans are to become reality.

Mr. Justice David C. McDonald, the commission chairman, announced Wednesday that preparation of a report on policy matters is about to begin. He did not specify which matters.

He made the announcement as the commission began an adjournment of public hearings expected to last at least two months.

"This does not mean the commission is stopping work," McDonald said of the adjournment. "Quite the contrary."

Apparently replying to critics who say the two-year-old commission has been moving too slowly, McDonald said any attempt to enhance accountability and control of the RCMP will founder unless the full story is heard.

Only by hearing detailed evidence would it be possible to judge how widespread was the practice at senior levels of the RCMP of withholding information from solicitors-general, or of judging fairly how much cabinet ministers and officials knew of RCMP wrongdoing.

A number of witnesses remain to be heard, among them Robin Bourne, director of a security analysis unit in the solicitor-general's department for most of the 1970s, and Roger Tasse, now deputy minister of justice and formerly deputy solicitor-general.

Quick twister rips up town's business area

THE PAS, Man. (CP) — "There were just ominous clouds dancing all over the place," said Donna Huska, explaining the moments before a tornado hit the northwestern Manitoba community Wednesday night.

"We were standing on the porch," Mrs. Huska said.

"There was an occasional bit of rain but no wind. Then we saw what we thought was a fire or an explosion because there was a lot of noise and a lot of debris blowing around."

The tornado, which struck just after 8 p.m., lasted only a few minutes before moving off but reports indicate substantial damage was caused to some businesses in the downtown section of the town.

There were no reports of injuries.

Mrs. Huska said power was cut off to part of the town but no fires broke out. She said there also were reports of overturned trucks and campers.

"I've lived here all my life and I've never seen anything like this. But it was definitely a small twister."

Another witness, David Andrechuk, said he was three miles west of The Pas when he saw the tornado moving out of the Carrot River Valley.

Andrechuk said it sounded like "noisy helicopters." He said it picked up a large logging truck and threw it about 75 feet into a farmer's field. He said he didn't see the driver and thought the truck may have been parked.

78 forest fires rip through Manitoba

Times News Services

Forestry officials in Manitoba Wednesday reported 22 fires burning out of control including one which has blackened 25,000 acres near Grand Rapids.

Officials said there were 78 fires, 12 under control, 14 being held, and no action being taken on 30 because they were located in remote areas.

A forestry spokesman said 90 per cent of the fires were caused by lightning strikes.

So far there have been 275 fires reported, compared to last year's 250 during the same period.

Rain, meanwhile, fell on much of Alberta Wednesday, easing the forest fire situation everywhere but in the blazing Athabasca Forest in the far northeast.

Seven fires in the forest, four of them out of control, were burning over about 317,000 acres of woodland during the day with hot weather and lightning forecast for the area.

The department of energy and natural resources reported about 300 men backed by helicopters were battling the Athabasca fires. One near the boundary with the Northwest Territories covered about 200,000 acres.

Meanwhile, 13 other fires burning in five other forest districts in Alberta were either under control or partially controlled.

To date, 388,253 acres have been destroyed this year in 506 fires, compared with 409 fires on 14,200 acres in the same period in 1978.

Also, for the first time in more than a week, hopeful signs began to emerge late Wednesday that a raging forest fire in the Gambo area of Newfoundland that has destroyed 44,800 acres of woodland may be dying.

Forestry officials here said that in some areas the fire had burned over all the available wood in its path and was beginning to collapse back on itself.

Forestry Minister James Morgan said Wednesday he is considering offering rewards for information leading to the successful prosecution of those guilty of setting forest fires.

There is strong evidence that arson was the cause of some of the dozens of forest fires that have broken out around the province so far this summer, the minister said.

All's quiet in Bathurst

BATHURST, N.B. (CP) — Streets here were quiet Wednesday night as the city's police force re-established law and order following a week-long strike.

Police were back on the streets by early evening and demonstrated their return to work by slowly cruising city streets waving and smiling to residents of this mining city.

Police Chief Jack Howell said he is confident the 26-member force can recapture the trust and confidence of this city's 16,000 residents.

Levesque's mum dies

QUEBEC (UPC) — Premier Rene Levesque's mother, Dianne Pelletier, died Tuesday night of a heart attack. She was 83. Levesque was at his mother's bedside when she died. The premier's office said the funeral would be held Friday in Quebec City. Levesque's father, Dominque Levesque, died when he was very young and his mother re-married.

Pet policy plan ends

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Humane Society's pet-insurance plan has been cancelled because of heavy losses from widespread abuse, the society's executive vice-president said Wednesday.

Under the plan a pet-owner paid $20 for each animal, covering $1,000 in veterinary fees and $100,000 in public liability and providing a $100 death benefit.

One man insured three puppies and collected $300 in death benefits when they died suddenly, said Linda Norwood, a spokesman for Constitution Insurance, which provided the coverage.

Enigmatic Quebecer Claude Wagner dies, age 54

MONTREAL (CP) — Senator Claude Wagner, who aspired to be premier of Quebec and prime minister of Canada, died Wednesday. He was 54.

A family friend at Wagner's Montreal home said the senator died at 7 p.m. (EDT) at the east-end Maisonneuve-Rosemont Hospital. He had been admitted to hospital last June 4.

She did not know the cause of death, but two years ago there were reports — which the family declined to confirm — that Wagner was being treated for leukemia.

"He was a great Canadian and a great Quebecer," commented fellow-Senator Martial Asselin, minister of state in charge of the Canadian International Development Agency.

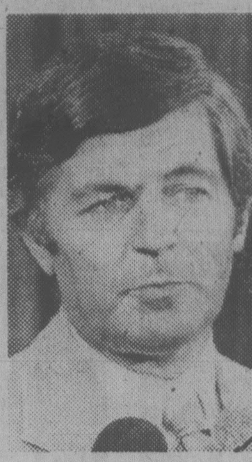
He became best known outside Quebec at the Progressive Conservative leadership convention in 1976, where, even though he was backed by former prime minister John Diefenbaker, he lost on the fourth ballot to Joe Clark by 65 votes.

In 1970 the urbane, handsome Wagner had tried to capture the leadership of the Quebec Liberal party, but lost to Robert Bourassa. Bourassa went on to become premier of Quebec.

A native of Shawinigan, Que., Wagner became interested in politics while attending the University of Ottawa.

An official biography of Wagner said his father, a Jewish immigrant from Bavaria, worked as a professional musician to put his son through school.



WAGNER
. . . a great Canadian

After graduating from the University of Ottawa and McGill University's law school, Wagner began a private law practice, and 10 years later, in 1960, became a Crown prosecutor. His zeal as a prosecutor led to his being appointed to the bench as a sessions court judge in 1963.

A year later he entered politics and won a seat as a Liberal in the Quebec legislature. Then premier Jean Lesage promptly named him justice minister.

After his defeat by Bourassa, Wagner returned to the bench, where he earned a reputation as a stern supporter of law and order.

The federal Conservatives under Robert Stanfield wooed him back to politics with the guarantee of $12,000 a year from a private fund. He won his seat in the semi-rural riding of St. Hyacinthe in 1972, but failed to increase the party's fortunes in Quebec as a whole in the 1972 and 1974 elections.

After losing to Clark, relations were strained between the two. He was bumped from his job as Quebec lieutenant in favor of Roch LaSalle, MP for Joliette. Enmity between LaSalle and Wagner was often apparent in public exchanges between the two men.

In April, 1978, Wagner was appointed a senator by then-prime minister Pierre Trudeau and had rarely been in the public eye since.

Clark to tour black Africa

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Clark will visit four countries this summer as he makes the first official visit to black Africa by a Canadian prime minister.

Making his second foreign trip since his Conservative government was elected May 22, Clark will visit Cameroon July 28-31 and then fly to Lusaka, Zambia, for the Commonwealth heads-of-government meeting. After the meeting he will visit Tanzania Aug. 9-10 and Kenya Aug 11.

An official in the prime minister's office said Clark had also wanted to visit Senegal, like Cameroon part of francophone Africa, but President Leopold Senghor was otherwise occupied.

Senghor is the man behind the idea of a francophone summit, similar to the anglophone meeting in Lusaka. Clark is expected to discuss the question with Cameroon President Ahmadou Ahidjo.

A published report said Clark chose the countries to visit after being told that the leaders of Senegal, francophone Ivory Coast and oil-wealthy and influential Nigeria were too busy to see him.

Nothing childish about young acting troupe

TORONTO (CP) — There's nothing childish about the First All Children's Theatre, a New York-based theatre company which opened a three-week children's arts festival here this week.

The 40 six-to-17-years-old actors, who call themselves First ACT, are each tough-minded performers. As 10-year-old Maritza Santana says, "learning a part is our responsibilty."

Founder and director Meridee Stein, 31, says she tells the children: "If you want a babysitter, fine, but you have to leave.

If someone is late twice, he or she is dropped from the company.

Many of the children in First ACT come from problem homes and from areas of New York such as Harlem and the Bronx, where there is nothing else for them to do, she says.

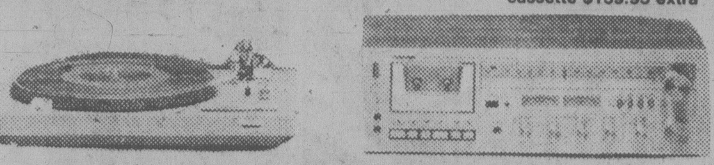
After all, where else can you get a superb Toshiba AM/FM stereo receiver with a full 30 Watts RMS (total), twin tuning meters, loudness control, filter, and one of the smoothest weighted tuning dials in the business. Also included are two SOMA Canadian-built loudspeakers (extremely good bass for their size) and an AUDIO REFLEX belt-drive turntable with automatic return and shut-off, as well as anti-skating control. When you throw in Young's exclusive 7-year stereo guarantee, and give it a price of $509.95 . . . . it's a bargain. For eighty dollars less . . . . it's a steal.

Shown with optional cassette $139.95 extra



WILL THEY HATE IT EVEN MORE AT ONLY $429.95?

No downpayment required. Payments as low as $17.40 per month (36 months) on approved credit. Less if you use your old set as downpayment.

Jagger's dream . . . to be a Labor MP

TORONTO (CP) — Mick Jagger, lead singer for the Rolling Stones, was ridiculed by other members of the rock-music group for the reputation he built as a satanic, demonic presence, says Tony Sanchez.

Sanchez, who says he worked for eight years as a drug carrier and paid companion of Stones guitarist Keith Richard, writes that the band's founder, the late Brian Jones, also was mocked and ridiculed by the other group members.

One of Jagger's dreams was to become a Labor party member of the British Parliament because "it is so much more significant and worth while than just writing and singing songs for the rest of my life."

He says Richards's heroin addiction was so severe that most of his waking hours were devoted to obtaining drugs, taking them, then searching for more.

"I rang all my contacts. Pushers somehow intuit when addicts are desperate, and Keith was forced to pay an extortionate $1,000 for a mere quarter ounce of heavily-cut, low-grade heroin.

"He was so grateful he didn't quibble."

Arrested with 22 grams of heroin in a Toronto hotel room two years ago, Richard was convicted of possession and in April performed two benefit concerts for the blind as part of his sentence. The Crown is appealing the sentence.

After signing into a New York clinic, Richard said he had kicked the habit and was determined to abstain from drug use.

Sanchez says that when Richard was trying to devise ways to smuggle drugs past customs officers, he heard about a man who had strapped cocaine-filled money bags under his children's clothes.

Bridge is a game of probabilities. You make a certain bid because you think it will probably turn out better than any other bid; you make a certain play because you think it will probably turn out better than any other play. If your judgment in gauging probabilities is good, you will do well, since you cannot have a better ally than the law of probabilities.

Assume you're in six spades and West leads a club. Of course, West may have the king, in which case it would be right to finesse, but your judgment should tell you that it is better not to finesse.

At best, you have a 50 per cent chance to win the finesse, while if you go up with the ace you have a far better chance of escaping a club loser by playing three rounds of diamonds, planning to discard a club on the third diamond. The probability of finding the diamonds divided 4-3 is 62 per cent.

But when you take the ace of clubs and lead the A-K-Q of diamonds, East ruffs low and you are forced to overruff. You enter dummy with a heart and play a fourth diamond, hoping that East will either be out of trumps or be compelled to ruff with the ace. Unfortunately, East ruffs low again and once more you overruff.

Now, to show your versatility, you switch to a different method of attack. You lead the K-Q-J of hearts, hoping to find that suit divided 4-4, in which case you can salvage the club loser by discarding three clubs from dummy.

It runs out that the hearts are divided 5-3, but your staying power puts you on top because East can do no better than ruff the fourth heart with the ace of trumps — and by this time your club loser has flown the coop.

Astrological Forecast for Friday, July 13
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): Steady pace wins — approach to problems, situations should be calm. Avoid inflammatory statement, undue rhetoric. You're on brink of discovery, good fortune. Know it, be quiet within, make an ally of one who is temporarily incapacitated.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Emphasis on pleasure principle, fond hopes and wishes, haze of romance. Forces are scattered. Don't make commitment. Give full play to curiosity — ask questions, plant seeds. You soon will regain sense of security and direction.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Establish territory, claim. What seems a defeat can be transformed into a triumph. Aquarius, Scorpio persons figure in scenario. Accent on authority, employer, career, business, ability to put policies into effect.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Home repairs, investments could dominate. Be receptive to requests by family. Key is gentle persuasion, diplomacy. Remember gift for special occasion, anniversary. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio natives figure prominently.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Lie low, go slow — check legal aspects, nuances. Spotlight on partnership, marital status, willingness to see places, people in realistic light. Define terms, be aware of rights and permissions. Heed counsel of one who proved loyalty in past.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Practical issues command attention. Accent on work, health, keeping [illegible]one who depends upon you. Favor is repaid. Capricorn, Cancer persons figure prominently. Order is confirmed. You'll have more work and greater opportunity for reward.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Style is imprinted — more persons become aware and are attracted to you. Know it, be confident, take a chance on your own capabilities. Aries, Libra figure prominently. An assignment will be completed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Break new ground. Build on solid base for security. Leo, Aquarius figure in scenario. Stress independence, maturity, discipline necessary to learn rules before breaking them. You could be starting "something big."

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You get message from relative which could result in short trip, visit or investment. Another Capricorn, a Cancer and Pisces figure prominently. Ideas prove profitable — if you follow through with development program.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on paying, earning, collecting, setting record straight. Expand horizons without spreading efforts too thin. Gemini, Sagittarius natives play "compelling" roles. You have chance to set record straight regarding expenses.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Efforts pay dividends — cycle is such that you make the most of opportunities. Restrictions, obstacles can be transformed into steppingstones. Intuition, judgment are on target. Know it and be confident. You'll win!

IF JULY 13 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you are rebellious in sense that you tear down for purpose of rebuilding. You make new start in 1979, you imprint style and gain greater degree of independence. July could be your most memorable month of 1979. Aquarius, Scorpio, Leo persons play key roles in your life. You are tenacious, loyal, stubborn and were on your own early — in literal or psychological sense. Your greatest asset is determination to wait and win. You may appear, at times, to give up — but you seldom do. You come back to try again . . . and again . . . until you emerge victorious. You can make money and love in July. You finish a task and are rid of a burden in August.

The Lord is my Shepherd
I shall not want
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures
He leadeth me beside the still waters
He restoreth my soul
He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake
Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death
I will fear no evil
For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies
Thou anointest my head with oil
My cup runneth over
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Inventor Ray Bartlett has created a machine he believes can turn ugly acres of tree stumps into valuable wood chips.

It's the Bartlett Stump Splitter, a monstrous pair of blades on a tractor that bite into a stump from either side with 247,000 pounds of pressure per square inch. The blades rotate. The trunk and root ball shatter from within.

Bartlett already has orders from the Soviet Union for three of the machines once it goes into production and the Canadian government has been looking at two splitters.

"This machine does some fantastic things," says a spokesman for the Washington state department of commerce and economic development.

"In my opinion this harvest tool is part of the gradual sophistication of machinery which ultimately will result in making it feasible to make a total harvest of timber.

"It's just a crying shame that there hasn't been a good visionary person at the helm of one of the large tractor manufacturers," the official says.

Bartlett, 51, says the splitter can extract a 60-inch diameter stump in about two minutes. It could split 200 stumps a day, he says.

The U.S. Forest Service tested and reported favorably on the machine in 1974.

Dan McKenzie, project engineer at the Forest Service Equipment Development Center at San Dimas, Calif., said that perhaps the market for such a machine was limited.

But the oil shortage could boost the market for wood pellets used as fuel and the splitter — along with a chipper he invented — would make use of waste, Bartlett says.

"Think of the millions of tons of fiber lying on every forest floor that's just a fire hazard now and could become fuel if it could be harvested economically. Well, it can now," Bartlett said.

Ross case going to jury

The B.C. Supreme Court trial in Victoria of Tommy Ross Jr. on a charge of first degree murder is expected to go to the jury today.

Ross, 20, of Los Angeles, is charged with the strangulation death of 26-year-old Janice Forbes, whose body was found in her Queens Avenue apartment on Mother's Day, May 14, 1978.

A surfeit of beauty can ruin future plan

GARDENING
Jack Beastall

When spring bulbs, flowering shrubs and trees, climbers and perennials are at their height of bloom we cannot resist their beauty.

After the flowering period has passed our attitude to the plants seems to change. We recall their beauty for a while, then tend to forget they exist.

Possibly we have, in this climate, too many plants coming along one after another from early spring through summer and fall, even over winter if we have added some of the winter-flowering plants that succeed here.

If our climate was such that only half-a-dozen flowering plants could persist we would give them the utmost care so as to enjoy their beauty another year.

A question asked by home gardeners every year is why a certain tree, shrub or other plant is not blooming when it has bloomed well in the past? What fertilizer should be given, or should it be sprayed for some pest that may be eating the blooms?

Even the weather, normal as it may be, sometimes is blamed. While prevailing weather conditions can help or hinder flowering, more depends on the weather of the previous year and the care given the plant after its previous flowering period.

The ability of our spring-flowering bulbs to make flowers next year depends on sufficient water and food after flowering and as long as the foliage remains naturally green. That is the time when the bulbs rebuild their strength and, in some cases, form the next season's flowers within the bulb. Lack of attention during this after-flowering period means poor flowers the following year.

Spring-flowering trees and shrubs make their flower initials during the summer after flowering is over. This is the period when they need the most attention to watering. Summer and fall flowering trees and shrubs produce their flowers on new wood made in the spring and the spring care they receive is important.

The care given during these periods of flower initiation determines the quality and quantity of bloom produced the next flowering season, and care involves reasonable watering and feeding, if needed, at the right time.

Fertilizer is a tricky thing to handle. Too much at one time, or a little at the wrong time, will cause the plant to put all its energy into making new growth instead of producing flowering wood and having it properly ripen before the growing season ends.

Fertilizer should only be used if and when plants show a need, then at about one-half the manufacturer's recommendation.

The feeding of fruit trees must be completed by the end of February, otherwise there is no benefit to the coming crop. Later feedings cause rank growth of new wood which results in inferior fruits.

Spring bulbs and shrubs are fed as the last flowers fade. Summer- and fall-flowering shrubs and trees are fed in March.

All plants which have growth above ground over winter should not receive any fertilizer after the end of June, a rule based on years of experience in growing plants in this climate.

The Capital Regional Board board voted Wednesday to prepare revenue-sharing formulas for its component municipalities and electoral areas.

But it could be an exercise in futility.

City director Bob Wright retorted: "Revenue-sharing — that's a bit of a joke. We set our budgets and go out and tax our people."

"We've got to make a start somewhere," Esquimalt mayor Art Young said. "The region has to have more clout."

Sooke director Charles Perkins said land-use control must be combined with revenue-sharing.

"It should be both or neither," he added.

Wright came back with "Neither."

The issue was first raised earlier in the day when Saanich mayor Mel Couvelier, contending his municipality needs the controversial Tillicum shopping centre to increase its tax base, told the finance and personnel committee that "have" members of the region should share with the "have-nots."

He was apparently referring to Victoria and its revenue from the downtown business district.

Any formula worked out on revenue-sharing would have to get the consent of the various councils.

Lotteries man sues

The former head of the B.C. Lotteries Branch has filed a B.C. Supreme Court action seeking general damages from the provincial government for wrongful dismissal.

Jack Stewart was suspended last October.

His lawyer, former deputy attorney general David Vickers said today the action was started June 1 this year.

Refugees face horror ride

By MOIRA FARROW
FP News Service

"If you had seen what I had seen it would make your blood run cold," Calder said Wednesday.

Calder is a white-haired, retired building contractor from New Zealand who volunteered his services to World Vision. He opened the organization's office here in April, 1978, has visited most of the refugee camps in Southeast Asia and talked to hundreds of boat people. He recounted some of the incidents which together paint the background for his work.

There was the incident of the two german vessels supplying an oil rig in the South China Sea to which 300 or so refugees had tied their leaky boat.

"The Germans had just taken the refugees in tow when Vietnamese gunboats appeared and ordered them to stop," said Calder.

"The Germans didn't stop so the gunboats fired at them and forced them to stop. Then the refugees were towed away by the gunboats and they are probably all dead by now."

Calder said refugees at sea are often terrorized by Thai and Malay pirates, disguises as fishermen, who rob them of any valuables they still possess.

"Some are robbed four or five times before they get to land and some have their fingers chopped off by the pirates who are after their rings," he said.

"In one boat a woman was raped in front of her husband and then thrown overboard with her children. The pirate boat backed up over her and chopped her to pieces with the propeller. Sometimes I can hardly sleep at night knowing what's going on out there."

Calder said one of the worst incidents he has learned about involved a small boat laden with 34 people, including 15 children and two pregnant women, which was set adrift off the North Vietnam coast with no engine and one day's supply of food.

"By the time they were picked up they were drinking their own urine and two children had died."

To prevent this kind of atrocity, World Vision chartered a boat last year and gave aid at sea to the refugees—everything from food and water to compasses and charts. This year World Vision has its own ship, Sea Sweep, which left here last week for its first relief trip out to sea.

"Most of the people we come across have no idea where they are or where to steer because they have nothing to guide them," said Calder.

"We only pick-up refugees who are in peril of losing their lives, which is what international marine law dictates."

He explained that if World Vision picked up refugees who are not actually dying, then the governments of Singapore and Malaysia would probably order the organization out.

"Twenty-five million U.S. dollars a year goes through our banks here in Singapore, but the government only tolerates us," said Calder.

"We have offered to supply several of the camps with essentials, such as milk and vitamins, but we've not even received an acknowledgement of our offer from any government."

U.S.-based World Vision, which has a highly active Canadian arm, believes the lack of official co-operation in its relief efforts is caused by fear that it would only encourage the flood of refugees.

"In fact, we're treated like international criminals because Asian countries just don't want refugees," said Calder, who expects to leave in a few weeks because the government won't extent his visa.

What Calder urgently wants is for the various nations accepting refugees to greatly speed-up their screening process. At present, some refugees spend more than a year in the camps.

"It's not a lack of sponsors," said Calder. "There are more sponsors in the U.S. alone than there are refugees to fill the places. But still the refugees sit in camps and rot."

What Calder wants from the Canadian government is an agreement to process immediately any of the refugees in dire need who are picked up at sea by World Vision ships. He's crossing his fingers that World Vision Canada can pull this off.

Marathoners hearty lot

BOSTON (AP) — Doctors have long noticed that men who run in marathons have strong and healthy hearts. A new study suggests that it may be inherited vigor, not the running, that keeps them fit.

The researchers found that marathoners have far less heart disease in their family histories than do people who sit at home.

"The findings of the present study are consistent with the hypothesis that men who engage in regular exercise are genetically protected against coronary heart disease," the report said.

On the other hand, the researchers conceded that their statistics could also be used to argue that exercise itself contributes to the runners' strong hearts.

The fathers of the runners had less heart disease, so the reasoning goes, because they exercised regularly, and they encouraged their sons to work out, too.

However, the researchers concluded that more studies are needed before concluding for sure that running is good for the heart.

The research, compiled by doctors at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston, was published in the New England Journal of Medicine.

Dragoti fined for cocain

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — Film director Stanley Dragoti, husband of model Cheryl Tiegs, was given a 21-month suspended sentence and fined 100,000 marks — about $55,000 — for smuggling cocaine. The 46-year-old Dragoti, who directed the hit Dracula movie Love at First Bite, was arrested May 13 after customs officials at Frankfurt's Rhein-Main airport discovered a capsule with nearly 25 grams of cocaine.

Leaked report shows DC-10 design flawed

By JOHN KENDALL
Los Angeles Times

The DC-10 was certified as airworthy without submission of sufficient data to substantiate the fail-safe adequacy of its pylon design, an internal Federal Aviation Administration document disclosed Wednesday.

The document, sent anonymously to President Carter, members of Congress and the press, was identified by FAA Administrator Langhorne Bond in a Washington hearing as one of his agency's working papers.

Under the heading "Legal Arguments," the four-page document stated: "Airplane (DC-10) doesn't meet 603 (a) (type certification standards), didn't meet it when certificated and didn't meet it when certificate was suspended."

The paper was thought to have been prepared by FAA Assistant Chief Counsel Carl Schellenberg, one of a group of FAA investigators who spent weeks here studying the adequacy of the DC-10's pylon design.

Schellenberg was on vacation Wednesday and could not be reached to confirm the agency's assumption that someone had taken his work and made it public, according to the FAA.

The FAA document reported the discovery of "misleading information" in McDonnell Douglas' original type certificate data regarding the description of the aft pylon bulkhead fitting as a dual structure.

Under "incorrect information," the paper said that one of the loading conditions in a fail-safe analysis of the aft pylon bulkhead was "not correct" and had been listed differently in another report.

Also, the FAA document noted that when McDonnell Douglas amended its DC-10 type certificate in 1976 to cover installation of heavier CF6-6DI engines, the fail-safe analysis documentation had not been adequately updated.

Under the heading "Missing Data (until recently)" the paper reported that the revised fail-safe analysis for aft pylon bulkhead — taking the heavier engine into consideration — had been submitted on June 15.

"Since suspension (of the DC-10's type certificate on June 6), it has been determined," the document said, "that thrust loads are applied to the aft pylon bulkhead which were not accounted for in the fail-safe stress analysis."

The author of the paper also said that the DC-10 does not comply with federal air regulations barring unreliable and hazardous design features and details.

The anonymous letter writer who sent a copy of the FAA paper to President Carter wrote that he or she had been prompted by duty but must remain unknown because of possible reprisal.

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa said he believes trade sanctions against Zimbabwe Rhodesia will be lifted without any change in the constitution which cannot be altered without approval of the white minority.

The black leader, who flies to London today for talks with the British government, said Wedneday he was encouraged by a change in the U.S. attitude towards his regime.

He said President Carter during a meeting at Camp David, Md., showed a "very sympathetic attitude and also promised not to work against the Muzorewa government."

But the White House issued a statement indicating that the meeting ended in disagreement and calling indirectly for constitutional changes that would give blacks a bigger role in the government.

"In a frank exchange of views, the president emphasized his sincere desire to see an end to the bitterness and bloodshed in Zimbabwe Rhodesia," the statement said.

"He believes this can be accomplished by establishment of a broadly based consensus on constitutional procedures and administrative processes which are responsive to the legitimate political aspirations of all the peoples of Zimbabwe Rhodesia."

The state department said Carter told Muzorewa that the United States will maintain trade sanctions for the time being.

Wonderful Witty's

Walk of the Week

But they make no effort to move from their confined space. They seem to sense the predators are too slow to do them any harm and would settle for a mouse anyway.

The scene, not an unfamiliar one, is at Witty's Lagoon Regional Park at Metchosin, a beautiful area to spend a day walking and bird-watching. And it's only eight miles from Victoria.

One of the delightful sights is the Lady Sitting Falls which tumbles into a pool at the head of the lagoon. The best time to see it is in spring or winter when there is plenty of water flowing down Bilston Creek.

Indians, who once occupied the lagoon site, named the falls. If you look closely you will see why.

There are two accesses to the park. The best one starts from a parking lot on Metchosin Road just opposite the golf course. An attractive trail takes you around the north shore of the lagoon where there are good views of the falls and some excellent spots for bird-watching.

Another way to get there is to follow the trail that crosses the bridge over Bilston Creek. This takes you first to a lookout overlooking the falls and then around the south side of the lagoon and on to Witty's beach where there is good swimming.

To get to the second access continue on Metchosin Road, turn left on Witty's Beach Road and drive for seven-tenths of a mile to a parking area above the beach. A long series of steps takes you to level ground.

This is a good place for a family outing. There are more than four kilometres of trails, plus an excellent sandy beach for swimmers and sun bathers.

Landscapers want to join planning team

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

It's not that they are ignored. It's just that governments, planners and developers tend to not include them in the early stages of their projects.

As a result, often after a highway is put in, for example, they will be called and asked to "stab a few trees" around to make the job look a little more pleasant.

Landscape architects would prefer to be part of the planning team so that they can add their expertise and advice on how to best use the visual or physical characteristics of the site.

Moura Quayle of Victoria is president of the B.C. Society of Landscape Architects and interested in raising the profile of her professional colleagues.

"We've got a way to go in ensuring that the landscape architect is included at the start," she said in an interview.

"Too often we are called in at the end and have to try and repair the devastation."

There are 63 registered members of the B.C. landscape architects society and Quayle says their numbers are growing and interest in the profession improving in the province.

For example, a new undergraduate course in landscape architecture will begin this fall at the University of B.C.

And preparations are already under way for hosting the annual convention of the international federation of landscape architects in Vancouver in 1981.

In the meantime, there needs to be more work done to focus attention on the value of the landscape architect's expertise and to encourage governments to make more use of them, Quayle says.

There are people in the environment ministry whose job is that of landscape architects but Quayle feels they should be available on a more general basis so that other ministries would have access to them.

They should be called in during the initial stages of planning things like B.C. Hydro right-of-way clearing projects or highway widenings, she says.

"The visual is becoming part of the planning process and it is the landscape architect that has the expertise to deal with that kind of component."

She and her partner John Gould explain that the landscape architect can often find ways of working with the ecological system on the site — water or trees — and enable developers to plan their projects to fit in with and make better use of the surroundings.

For example, instead of findings ways to flush all the water on a particular site off the property, ways could be found to use the water to make the project more attractive.

Gould says there is still a pioneering kind of attitude among many developers and planners.

"They want to tear everything down and then build up.

Garbage boxcars, sewage tank units seen for the E&N

So why not the end result of all its cargo — boxcars packed with garbage and tank cars full of sewage?

Instead of spending more money adding to sewage systems and garbage disposal, Cowichan-Malahat NDP MLA Barbara Wallace envisions a garbage/sewage train servicing the island over the E & N.

During debate in the legislature Wednesday on Environment Minister Rafe Mair's spending estimates, Wallace said the ministry must look to alternatives to the accepted methods of waste disposal.

She suggested a garbage train feeding a central depot — likely in the Cowichan Valley — could pick up cars from various centres that had been packed with garbage or pumped full of sewage.

U.S. recession spills north

Canadian auto industry lays off 3,000 workers

Times News Services

The deepening recession and spreading energy fears in the United States have started spilling over into Canada, with the first indicator being massive layoffs in the auto industry.

More than 3,000 workers Canadian workers have been laid off indefinitely because U.S. motorists are buying more small, fuel-efficient foreign cars.

And in Washington, latest government forcasts are that the economy has entered a recession that will last the rest of this year, with inflation at or near a double-digit pace in 1979 and 1980 and the jobless rate rising to 7.3 percent.

"It will be a difficult time for us until people in the U.S. are convinced energy will be available," Bob White, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers Union, said in Toronto.

One of the largest Canadian shutdowns affects 2,200 employees for about four weeks at the Toronto van plant of General Motors of Canada Ltd. Company officials said the shutdown, which begins Aug.7, has resulted because of a large inventory.

Thousands more Canadians will be affected by temporary shutdowns and reduced production rates.

Between 60 and 70 per cent of Canadian-made cars are shipped to the U.S.

During June, sales of new cars in the U.S. dropped 20 per cent from the same period last year with sales declining to 904,000 cars, compared with 1,137,199 the previous year.

The U.S. commerce department reported Wednesday that business inventories rose again in May to levels one agency spokesman called worrisome, particularly as consumers cut purchases.

The inventory buildup was announced as the Congressional Budget Office said the recession will be deeper than it originally believed. It predicted double-digit inflation through 1979 and as many as two million more Americans out of work by the end of next year.

Despite the gloomy news, Alice Rivlin, the agency director, warned against hasty action to reverse the slowdown because that might fuel inflation.

And Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal told the congressional joint economic committee the U.S. dollar was "in reasonably good shape" because of improvements in the trade and payments accounts.

The updated forecast, decidedly gloomier than the mild recession the agency predicted last January, calls for three consecutive quarters of "significant" decline in output this year, followed by "a weak recovery in 1980."

The CBO forecast, which is generally in line iwth the predictions of non-government economists, is expected to be somewhat more pessimistic than the Carter administration's latest predictions, scheduled to be unveiled today.

Although the White House has not disclosed what its forecast will contain, the administration is expected to predict a milder downturn than the budget office's forecast, with inflation in the 9 percent range and jobless-ness rising moderately.

Pulp union defies IWA

Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada pickets today defied threats by the International Woodworkers of America and maintained a two-day-old picket line at a Vancouver mill.

In the face of the challenge, the IWA seemed uncertain of its next move and was discussing strategy this morning.

IWA leaders Wednesday told the PPWC to remove pickets at MacMillan Bloedel's Vancouver Plywood and Canadian White pine operations or face possible violence.

The IWA leaders said that if the PPWC didn't pull out, the IWA might use force to clear out the pickets.

PPWC picket chairman John Murray said today, however, his union is on a legal strike and will not budge.

Tension between the two unions — long rivals in the forest industry — has been high recently, ever since PPWC roving picket squads began disrupting operations throughout the province.

Not only has the PPWC shut down operations where it represents the workers, it has also been closing mills where they are not represented.

There are over 1,000 IWA woodworkers at the Vancouver plant. Some of them crossed the picket line today but only to pick up paycheques.

"If they do not remove their picket lines, we will," IWA regional president Jack Munro warned Wednesday.

"We're not going to stand for it," he said.

IWA officials were unavailable for comment this morning.

The Harmac operation has been shut by pickets for several days, and roving squads from there have so far closed down mills employing more than 5,000 workers in Crofton, Prince Rupert, Powell River and Prince George.

The PPWC, which has 5,500 members, is dissatisfied with the contract, but the IWA, which has 30,000 members in the coast region, and the 7,500-strong Canadian Paperworkers' Union, have not completed voting. Results are expected in two weeks.

The tentative agreement provides for a 90-cents-an-hour increase in the first year and a 9.5 per cent in the second year, whichever is higher. Base rate for all three unions now is $8.16 an hour.

1 in 3 chickens diseased

EDMONTON (CP) — One out of every three chickens and turkeys sold in Canada is contaminated with potentially deadly Salmonella bacteria, but banning the diseased meat could badly disrupt the poultry industry, a federal health official said Wednesday.

Dr. A. B. Morrison, federal assistant deputy minister of health and welfare in the health protection branch, said officials are prepared to make sale of poultry containing Salmonella illegal, but he admits any such act would likely hurt the industry.

Other officials say poultry prices would rise, as they did in Sweden, Finland aand Denmark, where Salmonella epidemics sparked control measures.

Currently, Canada is sticking with voluntary programs with the goal for 1982 of a reduction to five per cent in the total number of diseased birds.

Salmonella bacteria produces a type of food poisoning, with symptoms usually limited to abdominal pain, diarrhea, fever, nausea, vomiting and dehydration.

But it can be fatal for infants, the elderly and the debilitated.

Firm to pay for BCR

The provincial government has reached agreement with a major coal company to extend the government-owned railway into the rich Sukunka coal fields of northeastern B.C.

Economic Development Minister Don Phillips said today a tentative agreement has been reached with British Petroleum Canada Ltd. for financing of the $50 million, 61-kilometre extension of the line from Chetwynd south to the Sukunka coal field which has reserves estimated at 2.8 billion tonnes.

Phillips said the government will finance the extension but the company will be responsible for the total cost if the project doesn't go ahead.

Repayment for the extension will be on a user-pay basis, he said.

"Somebody has to come up front and make a decision. When you look at the future possibility of 1,200 new jobs and millions of dollars in export revenue, its a very small amount."

The agreement also calls for the government to pay for the support facilities based on $30,000 a job, Phillips said in an interview.

"That still has to be ratified by the provincial and federal cabinets."

He estimated the cost at about $50 million for the railway and $25 million for the support facilities.

BP estimates that the first phase of its proposed mine will cost about $100 million, produce one million tonnes of clean metallurgical coal a year and create between 400 and 500 jobs by 1983. The second phase would see employment rise to 1,200 by 1987.

Big chunk of Skylab turns up in Australia

Times News Services

Skylab swished across the Australian sky and burst into thousands of sparking pieces as farmers and housewives watched the final spectacular moments of it's 874 million-mile space odyssey.

A large cylindrical object believed to be part of Skylab's docking mechanism was found in desert country about 1,000 kilometres east of Perth today, a U.S. consul spokesman said.

The object, measuring two metres long and one metre in diameter, was found at the township of Rawlinna, which has a population of about 50 people.

A twisted piece of metal found on the 15th tee of an Albany golf course Thursday led a groundskeeper to believe for a few hours that Skylab's misfortune had made him a rich man.

But it turned out to be a disappointing hoax to John Rowe, 27. The 25-inch lump of metal came from a nearby workshop and had been planted on the golf course there as a joke.

A Perth television station provided a plane to fly Rowe to Perth, 250 miles away, and a radio station there offered to fly him on to San Francisco, where he hoped to collect $10,000 offered by the San Francisco Examiner to the first person to bring a piece of Skylab to its office.

John Sealer, a farmer from Boondoonia, said at first he couldn't see the debris as it streaked across the sky Wednesday. But his farm animals heard a hissing sound and ran wildly around their pens.

"The dogs were barking and going mad and the horses, the horses were galloping around in a panic for quite some time afterward. And for quite a while there was a strange smell in the air — like freshly burnt earth," Sealer said.

Ira Goldfinch, a farmer on the south-west coast, looked up to the sky and saw a "glowing ball" that appeared to be heading straight at him.

"I was getting very worried and I saw it break up just as it started coming over the coast. It shattered into a thousand bright pieces," Goldfinch said.

"It was a bright red light and then it just broke into a whole lot of golden sort of fragments. A huge big shower and it blazed across the horizon," he said.

Hotel blaze claims 75

SARAGOSSA, Spain (UPI) — Europe's worst fire in more than a decade engulfed a 10-storey luxury hotel today, killing at least 75 persons and injuring about 100 more, including the widow and daughter of Generalissmo Francisco Franco, authorities said.

Some of the victims plunged to their deaths from upper floors of Saragossa's Hotel Corona de Aragon Hotel and others cried and screamed for help from balconies of as flames and billowing smoke spread quickly through the modern brick-and-wood building's 232 rooms.

An American witnesss said a young girl dangling outside a window from her mother's arms fell to the ground as a sheet of flames engulfed their room. Other panicky guests huddled on the roof or hung from balconies as U.S. Air Force helicopters from the joint Spanish-American airbase at Saragossa flew rescue sorties.

The city government said at least 75 people died in the fire. About 100 were injured.

Six killed in pile-up

TOKYO (UPI) — A chain reaction of motor vehicle accidents in a highway tunnel Wednesday night destroyed about 160 cars and left at least six persons dead, police said today.

Police said the fire that followed the wreck in one of the worst highway accidents in Japan was out of control almost 24 hours after it erupted.

More than $63 million worth of construction — enough to generate jobs for 1,000 persons for nearly a year — is being lost because of bureaucratic red tape and pressure from small but highly vocal groups, says Victoria's economic development commissioner.

Barry Mayhew made the comment in an interview Wednesday after releasing the results of an analysis of the status of seven major development proposals put forward in the Greater Victoria area in the past year.

Mayhew said the projects are all in a state of limbo, stalled by bureaucratic red tape and the opposition of environmental and ratepayer groups.

He said the proposals represent construction expenditures of $63 million, which at a conservative estimate, would generate more than $25 million in wages.

Based on the average construction worker wage of $14 an hour, that means about 1.8 million man-hours of work are being lost — enough to give 1,000 workers jobs for the next 11 months, he said.

Mayhew said the problem has reached the critical point and unless there is a relaxation of the paperwork requirements and a greater acceptance of development, the high rate of unemployment that has plagued the Greater Victoria area in recent years can only get worse.

The seven development proposals included in his analysis are:

—Daon Development's proposal to build a 23-unit housing complex in James Bay. Mayhew said the development is tied up in litigation with the James Bay Residents' League seeking an injunction to prevent construction. The loss — $1.8 million.

—Broadmead Farms' plan for a housing development at Minnie Mountain. Mayhew said the proposal has been shelved by Saanich because of ratepayers opposition and difficulties that arose concerning the validity of one of the aldermen's vote in favor of the project. The loss — $21 million.

—Broadmead Farms' proposal for a shopping centre at Royal Oak. Mayhew noted Saanich council has deferred making any decision on the scheme until the fall and that because of ratepayer pressure, there is doubt the project will be approved then. The loss — $13 million.

—Victoria's tank farm relocation project. Mayhew said a suggestion the farm should be located at Plumper Bay in View Royal — which he feels is an ideal site — has environmentalists up in arms and as a consequence municipal officials are unduly cautious about reaching a decision. The loss — $12 million.

—The new sewage dump site in View Royal. Because of controversy among local residents and the caution of Capital Region Board members no action has been taken, he said. The loss — $5.2 million.

—Hans Hartwig's proposed office-rental complex

Can't head off oilport at Pt. Angeles: Munro

Esquimalt-Saanich Conservative MP Donald Munro is opposed to the proposed oil supertanker port at Port Angeles but feels Canadians have little chance of stopping it if the U.S. decides to go ahead.

In a paper sent to Murray Glazier, chairman of the Capital Regional District which is holding an oilport hearing Friday, Munro says much of the oil to be delivered to any superport in the northwest U.S. will be of U.S. origin and the ships delivering it will be able to ply U.S. waters exclusively.

He said the U.S. can do what it wants in its own waters and disregard what Canadians think unless it can be proven that the damage an oil spill will bring to Canadian shorelines and fisheries will be repeated on U.S. shores.

Munro, stressing it is his personal view and not his government's, says he favors the alternative of branching oil off the Alyeska Pipeline in Alaska at the point where the Prudhoe gasline turns east toward the Yukon.

It would follow an overland route for oil, parallel the Northern Gas Pipeline to a point in Alberta where Prudhoe oil could be fed into existing pipelines and reach the markets the Norther Tier route is seeking.

Don Taylor, Conservative MP for Cowichan-Malahat-The Islands, will be among the politicians attending the board's hearing opening Friday at 9 a.m. at 824 Yates.

Residents concerned about traffic hazards on Torquay Road have convinced Saanich council's public works committee to close part of the street.

The committee approved a plan to close one block near Lambrick Park school. Under the plan the southern access to the school parking lot would be blocked and the northern access kept open.

Torquay residents presented a petition to council asking for partial closure because of the high accident rate in the area. Torquay connects with Shelbourne and Kenmore, which are high traffic volume streets.

Joane Moore, a spokesman for the residents, said they want the area closed before school starts.

During a survey by municipal engineers a majority of Torquay motorists said they wouldn't mind using another route.

Barriers will be erected and only fire trucks will be allowed emergency access to that part of the street.

Couvelier scores on shopping centre

Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier scored a victory Wednesday when the Capital Regional Board agreed to allow his municipality to go ahead with a controversial shopping centre although it contravenes the regional plan.

The board decided to drop legal action and allow the Tillicum development up to 240,000 square feet of department store merchandising.

It did not set a limit on over-all development which could include such facilities as restaurants, food stores and gas stations but Couvelier said Saanich has a covenant with the developer limiting the development to 295,000 square feet.

The board also decided to amend its regional plan to give the district some clout when it comes to regulating size and locations of regional shopping centres. The amendments will be dealt with at a meeting July 25.

Couvelier also persuaded the board that interfering with Broadmead Farms Ltd.'s understanding with Saanich could lead to legal action by Broadmead against Saanich.

Victoria director Bob Wright, however, said he doubted such legal action could stick because Saanich, according to Couvelier, has had only an "unwritten understanding" with Broadmead over the past 10 years.

Ask the Times

Q. With inflation still rampant, can you tell me if anything has been done in Britain to provide inflation-proof pensions? T.W.R.

A. Yes, in 1978, a scheme was endorsed by Parliament whereby pensions are automatically increased in line with the rising costs.

New rescue boat saves two gust-stricken sailors

Two Saanich men spent 45 minutes in the water off Ten-Mile Point Wednesday night after their 31-foot ketch broached and sank to the waterline.

Kim Reinholdt, 20, of 1696 Kisber, and Chris Mills, 20, of 120 Gair, were rescued by Saanich firemen Trevor Hughes and Ed Bradford using the department's newly-acquired 16-foot Zodiac rescue boat.

Hughes said Reinholdt and Mills were taking the boat from Sidney to Cadboro Bay and had just lifted a large centre board in the vessel when a gust hit them.

The sailboat tipped over on its side, filled with water and then, partially submerged, righted itself.

The incident occurred shortly before 7 p.m.

The firemen towed the boat into Smuggler's Cove where the owners were expected to bail out the water and complete their trip later today.

It was the third time the Zodiac has been used in rescues since the fire department got it two months ago.

The other two incidents were at Elk Lake and off Cordova Bay.

Directive ignored by RCMP

OTTAWA (CP) — The government announced 10 years ago that the RCMP security service would become more civilian but the reverse was true until last year, a royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing disclosed Wednesday.

The disclosure came after former RCMP commissioner Maurice Nadon, who ran the force from 1974 to 1977, indicated that the "civilianization" policy announced by the Trudeau government in 1969 had been implemented.

Mr. Justice David C. McDonald, the commission chairman, said the number of civilians in the security service increased by only 2.5 per cent between 1968-69 and 1977-78.

Above that level, McDonald said, civilians with the equivalent of officer rank fell to zero from 8.7 per cent in 1968-69, those at the senior non-commissioner officer level fell to .4 from 5.4 per cent, and those at junior NCO levels to 1.9 from 6.8 per cent.

At the most junior level — constable or lower — the number of civilians increased to 25.9 per cent from 14.1.

McDonald noted that former Prime Minister Trudeau in 1976 ordered that the service be given divisional status, an order which took effect a year later and has resulted in more civilians being hired by the security service.

The Trudeau policy was that the service should become increasingly separate in structure from the RCMP and civilian in nature. A royal commission had recommended that the service be separated from the RCMP altogether, but the government balked at going that far.

McDonald said the fact was that "whether by intent or happenstance" the real civilian content of the security service had declined until after 1978.

He asked Nadon whether he could still say the policy had been implemented.

"According to these statistics, it wasn't," Nadon said. He added that as commissioner he had had other priorities, chief among them fending off a movement in 1974 by the Mounties to form a union-like association.

Nadon also said that he had delayed giving the security service more autonomy because 100 men would have been needed to do the administrative work and the force didn't have the budget or the manpower to spare.

The security service finally drew the administrative strength from its own ranks — its manpower has never been made public officially — and now recruited its own men.

Nadon said the policy drew some opposition from RCMP divisional commanders, who until it was announced had control of security service men within their divisions.

Iraqui non-boycott has Ottawa puzzled

OTTAWA (CP) — The external affairs department and an international oil company are seeking clarification of an apparent oil boycott that officially never was.

Or to put it more clearly, the department and Petrofina Canada Ltd. of Montreal want to know whether an Iraqi government-owned agency has instituted an embargo without direction from its government.

If so why?

The unusual situation is this:

Earlier this month a ship loaded with Iraqi oil destined for Petrofina was halted in mid-ocean as it headed for Portland, Me., at the head of a pipeline to Montreal.

Informed of the situation, external affairs officials asked Iraqis why. They were told the Iraqi government had no objection to the ship discharging and subsequently it proceded to port.

But, external wanted to know, is there a boycott? They were told that there is no Iraqi government policy to interrupt supplies to Canada — about 10,000 barrels a day or two per cent of Canadian imports.

But, if that is the case, external and Petrofina ask, why was the ship halted and will it happen again? As yet they have no answers.

An external spokesman said this week the department is seeking to resolve the matter by getting word to the Iraqi marketing agency.

If there is or was an unofficial boycott it presumably is a result of the Conservative government's plans to eventually move the Canadian embassy in Israel to Jerusalem from Tel Aviv.

Secrets Act reform?

OTTAWA (CP) — A royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing is preparing a report that may help clear the legislative way for a freedom of information bill, it was learned Wednesday.

Informed sources said the report will deal with reform of the Official Secrets Act, which will have to be amended if announced government plans are to become reality.

Mr. Justice David C. McDonald, the commission chairman, announced Wednesday that preparation of a report on policy matters is about to begin. He did not specify which matters.

He made the announcement as the commission began an adjournment of public hearings expected to last at least two months.

"This does not mean the commission is stopping work," McDonald said of the adjournment. "Quite the contrary."

Apparently replying to critics who say the two-year-old commission has been moving too slowly, McDonald said any attempt to enhance accountability and control of the RCMP will founder unless the full story is heard.

Only by hearing detailed evidence would it be possible to judge how widespread was the practice at senior levels of the RCMP of withholding information from solicitors-general, or of judging fairly how much cabinet ministers and officials knew of RCMP wrongdoing.

A number of witnesses remain to be heard, among them Robin Bourne, director of a security analysis unit in the solicitor-general's department for most of the 1970s, and Roger Tasse, now deputy minister of justice and formerly deputy solicitor-general.
